Landis Notes Alice-in-Wonderland Procedures of Regulatory Agencies, Calls for Reorganization

In his report on federal regulatory agencies, James M. Landis handed over to President Kennedy a picture of outside influences, lobbying, spoils system appointments prominent in the agencies.

He was particularly attentive to the Civil Aeronautics Board, the Interstate Commerce Commission, and Federal Communications Commission. The one-time chairman of the CAB warned that solutions could not effect a cure unless top positions in the agencies are commanded by competent persons and not political reward appointees. Among Landis criticisms: The intrusion of influences off the record in determining cases before the CAB, and ICC decisions, which he feels stand in "the poorest category."

Landis, once active in the FTC, SEC, and who for 11 years was dean of the Harvard Law School, would like to see a permanent Administrative Conference of the United States to bring the regulatory agencies together in a cooperative system much like the federal court's judicial conference.

Elaborating on his ICC remarks, Landis said "decisions in this agency are among the poorest of all administrative agency opinions in the government, often winding up with a succinct conclusion devoid of any real rationalization." President Kennedy said the report was an impressive analysis of the agencies which deserves their attention and that of the Congress.

Landis has been appointed a special assistant to the President in the field of regulatory agencies "to effect," Kennedy said, "reforms in these agencies."

New Hydroframe-60 Box Car swallows 11 MPH impact, damage-susceptible newsprint load gets a baby-buggy ride!

Hydroframe-60

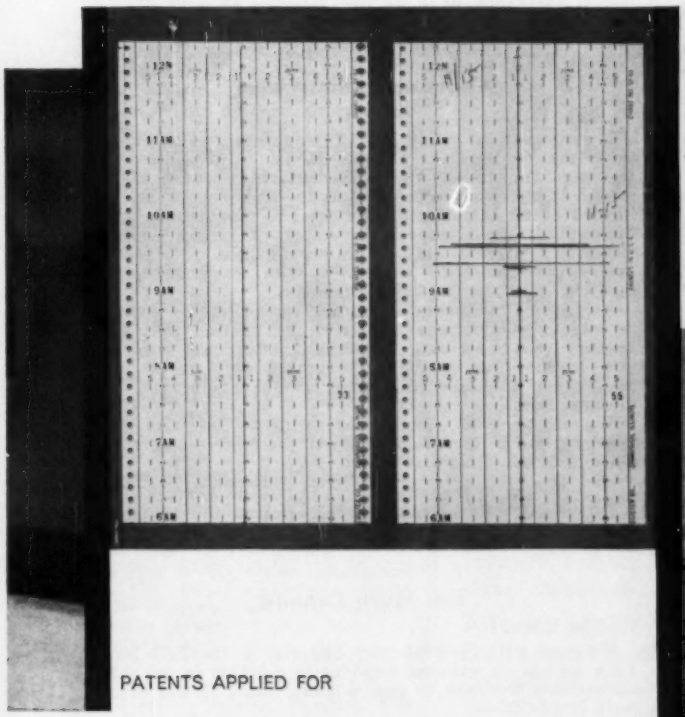

This new Pullman-Standard box car, the Hydroframe-60, has an astonishing effect on heavy impacts. They just disappear! Never get beyond the special underframe. Shipments, whether they're newsprint, the best bourbon or bottled baby foods, ride serenely to market . . . arrive as they left the plant: in 100% perfect, claim-free condition. Ready for sale or immediate use.

This newsprint roll shipment from the International Paper Company plant at Pine Bluff, Arkansas, for example, weighed 54,350 pounds and traveled 514 miles in the Hydroframe-60 Box Car. During this trip a ride recorder mounted on the car's underframe showed several impacts of 6, 7 and 8 mph plus two bruising blows of 10 and 11 mph. Yet, upon arrival at the publisher-consignee not a flat spot or out-of-round roll could be found in the entire load!

If you'd like to hear more about Hydroframe-60 protection, why this new principle of cushioning is so effective, how it can take the rap of heavy impacts, and its availability for your shipments, call or write us. We'll be happy to provide the details.

PATENTS APPLIED FOR

COUPLER IMPACT, 11 MPH: LOAD IMPACT, NONE!
These two impact recorder tapes tell the story. The one on the right shows two impacts of 10 and 11 mph at the coupler of the Hydroframe-60 car. The left tape recorded, at the same instant, any impacts that reached the load. As you can see, there were none strong enough to record.

ON ARRIVAL: NEWSPRINT READY FOR THE PRESSES
Here's the proof, the evidence of Hydroframe-60 performance. Thirty rolls of newsprint ready for the presses. No flat spots . . . no out-of-round rolls to stop production—cause costly down time or rewinding. And, no damage claims to file.

takes the STOP out of

"Stop and Go" traffic

Quick-acting PREST-O-MATIC works for you, not against you. Fully automatic, it prevents slow-downs and bottlenecks — saves you man hours aplenty.

Your fork truck driver simply pulls an overhead cord and goes through the opened door without stopping. The door opens and closes Prest-O-Matically in as little as 2 seconds. Compare this with manual doors that require your driver to stop, dismount, open the door, return to the truck, drive through . . . then stop to close the door again! Multiply this waste motion by the number of trips per day . . . per year.

Engineered to snug-fit your doorways, PREST-O-MATIC remains tightly closed when not in use. Neoprene Sealing stops drafts, eliminates heat or air-conditioning loss.

Complete in one easy to install unit. No extras. Available in Bifold (shown here) and Sliding. You choose the motive power — air or electric. Before you buy any door, get all the facts on PREST-O-MATIC. See our insert in Sweet's Catalog or, better still, write us today.

Warehouseman's Liability

To The Editor:

I am writing you in regard to a warehouseman's liability in the instance of burglary or theft of stored goods from his warehouse. I am interested, primarily, in references you may have collected of court decisions involving non-employes.

I regularly read your articles "Within the Law" and find them most informative and educational to me as a warehouseman. They have been of great value in continuing to make me aware of the many liabilities warehousemen are subject to in our business.

J. B. Carlos,
Manager

Certified Warehouse and Transfer Co.,
Salt Lake City, Utah

After making a thorough search of higher court decisions on theft of goods from warehouses, I can submit to you relevant higher court cases as follows: 160 S.W. (2d) 529; 119 Pac. (2d) 586; 264 Pac. 534; 9 S.W. (2d) 822; 124 So. 712; 51 F. (2d) 439; 218 N.Y.S. 61; 142 N.Y.S. 36.

Containerization Quest

To The Editor:

I represent a group of 10 second-year students at the Harvard Business School. In partial fulfillment of the requirements of the Manufacturing course at the school, we have elected to study and report on the impact of containerization on freight movements.

Specifically, we expect the report to cover containerization's present status, its significance, the present and future problems associated with its growth, and possible solutions to those problems.

As part of our research, we have read helpful articles in various publications. However, we suspect that your readers can contribute substantial additional information in the form of varied educated opinions as well as possible unpublished studies on the subject of containerization.

We invite your readers to write to us with such opinions and information on pertinent material of which we might not otherwise know.

Interested readers may contact Beatty by writing to Mellon B-21, Harvard Business School, Cambridge, Mass. —The Editor.

Too Much Exhaust

To The Editor:

We read with interest your editorial in the July issue. Your article on exhaust troubles is relative to our LPG carburetion business in that a diesel truck is one of our main competitors.

You may be interested in knowing that some makes of diesel engines will not operate to full efficiency without smoking. So, in the particular instance you relate it is possible that the fuel was correct and maintenance had not been overlooked.

We certainly appreciate reading articles of this kind because they point out some of the fallacies in the diesel over-the-road operation and are of assistance to us in promoting our product.

How much you cut costs and step-up efficiency with New Haven Railroad's new incentive rate program

Volume freight shipment combined with local warehousing achieves the distribution pattern that gives DM*, SM*, and GM*, these 3 important benefits:

1 YOU CUT PRODUCTION COSTS by effecting manufacturing economies. You mass produce large lots, not small individual orders, to achieve lower unit costs.

2 YOU CUT FREIGHT COSTS by mass shipping larger quantities, earning substantial savings with the New Haven Railroad incentive rate program.

3 YOU CUT DELIVERY TIME with your product available for immediate shipment from local warehouse. A big plus powerful selling tool for your salesmen when they can say "Our products are in stock in local warehouse for immediate delivery."

All this adds up to a far more efficient manufacturing and distribution operation for your company. Talk to your New Haven District Traffic Agent today. He's ready to work with you, without obligation.

NOTE TO DM*

NOTE TO SM*

NOTE TO GM*

ISING!

You know the substantial values derived by strategic spotting of product stocks throughout the country. This is the most effective kind of distribution.

You will fast recognize that your company may be able to establish stock spots with virtually no additional distribution cost. Look at it this way: If storage charges are so-much per unit, 100 small stocks—always providing carload freight advantages, particularly New Haven Railroad incentive rates, where applicable, are maintained — stored in 100 different locations may cost no more than a far smaller number of huge stock loads. As an expert in distribution, you recognize that the decentralized distribution set-up of such spot stocks insures fresh and complete stocks as needed, where needed, and when needed.

Most important is that these stocks are stored in the proper locations and warehouses. As your company DM, it will be your decision where stocks are to be spotted, and the volume of goods to be shipped into each market.

Of course, you will place your spot stocks in centers offering good storage facilities plus fast and economic reshipment to your customers. All over the U.S., and particularly in the New England area served by the New Haven Railroad, you find an excellent network of public warehouses. These warehousing specialists will receive, hold and redistribute your spot stocks very satisfactorily. They give you extensive and expert service; actually act as a branch-house capacity for your company, providing everything needed for efficient and economical local distribution.

Your basic concept in planning these strategic spot stocks is to keep your shipments to these warehouses as large as possible to earn lowest freight rates, particularly the New Haven Railroad volume incentive rates.

We are at your service to work with you in setting up your volume shipment-warehouse distribution program. Call us, without obligation.

What a sales advantage you get with a decentralized distribution system. With stock in local warehouses, you give your customers fast deliveries to insure fresh and complete inventories for your dealers, or materials and tools when needed in industrial plants. This could mean wide distribution and increased sales.

You know the sales clincher it is to tell a dealer or retailer that he can handle your product, yet carry only a small inventory. In fact, local warehousing for immediate delivery has proven a powerful sales tool in the industrial as well as consumer goods field.

There are other important sales advantages, too. With your product immediately available, you can avoid large open accounts and eliminate consignment selling. For your distributors and dealers get their goods on short notice. You can achieve wider distribution in greater depth, for dealers need carry only a small inventory, and thus are more likely to offer your complete line.

You improve customer relations by providing speedy service from your well-spotted stocks. No need for local shipments to distant customers—shipments that are costly and subject to delays.

You also meet competitive situations that demand immediate deliveries from local warehouse stock. For you know that many of your customers do not anticipate their requirements. When out-of-stock on your product, they can't or won't wait for shipments, but buy locally, and often a competing brand. If retailers put competitor's products on their shelves, or industrials put a competitive component into production, your failure to have local stocks has opened the door to competition. This can really hurt your sales!

That is why you, the SM, have a real stake in working with your DM to achieve a decentralized distribution pattern. With the New Haven Railroad incentive rate program, this pattern may not only help you increase sales, but actually cuts your cost-per-sale, as well!

You are for the distribution plan and program that will cut costs and step up efficiency.

If your sales volume in any market—within the minimum permissible warehousing period—is greater than the minimum weight on which a carload rate can be obtained, you show an immediate dollars-and-cents gain in carrying warehoused stock. With the New Haven Railroad's new incentive rates, this dollars-and-cents gain may now become even greater.

When warehousing handling and storage charges plus interest on the investment in stock accumulates to the total equal to the difference between less-carload and carload, or incentive, rates, the break-even warehousing point has been reached.

To this differential, however, you should add economies achieved by continuing mass production, which may in effect cut unit costs substantially, and thus greatly extend the warehousing break-even point.

Your DM can work out the volume freight rates and locate the public warehousing that achieves the distribution pattern which enables you to ship and store at optimum economy. This pattern reduces your investment in plant warehouse space, delivery equipment and labor costs.

Your company comptroller will be interested in the use of local warehousing, since it places your stored goods where they can be used as specific collateral for bank loans. This type of financing has become an established part of modern business procedure, particularly since the adoption of the Uniform Warehouse Receipts Act.

From the standpoint of your SM, this distribution pattern places complete stock, ready for immediate local delivery — a powerful selling tool!

Accordingly, consultation with your DM and SM may well prove that use of volume freight shipments, combined with a decentralized system of local warehousing, is both economical and highly desirable for your company.

On the Line—

"Mr. Obsolescence," Note

It's surprising what comes out of our mental storehouse when the proper key unlocks it. For example, two years ago we heard a speaker at a management meeting discuss obsolescence.

"To illustrate my point," he said, "I refer you to your own cities. Downtown, you will find modern shops and modern office buildings. Around town, you will find modern homes, modern schools, modern shopping centers—and so on. But have you ever seen a modern warehouse?"

The speaker then described what he claimed were typical warehouses—abandoned mills, old sheds, tin shanties, and so on. In answer to some protests from the group, he said their buildings were exceptions to the rule.

We're sure that he left the meeting not convinced that anybody ever built a warehouse just for that purpose. Unfortunately, too many other people are under the same wrong impression.

Well, we forgot all about that incident until one day about a month ago. On that day, one of our editorial research assistants showed us data from one of our current surveys. It had to do with public warehouse buildings and services, present and future.

Our findings provide an up-to-date statistical picture of public warehousing buildings, basic and special services, safety and protection devices, pickup and delivery trucks, handling equipment, and so on. We think that the detailed data will serve as a useful guide for public warehouse users.

It was while we were studying the data that the obsolescence speaker's remarks came to mind. We're going to try to reach him. He should be surprised to learn how obsolete his concept of public warehouse obsolescence is.

To tell the truth, even we got a surprise or two from this survey—as close as we are to the industry. For instance, we've always known that quite a few refrigerated warehouses also handled general merchandise. What surprised us is that this survey reveals that less than half of all refrigerated warehouses are devoted exclusively to cold storage.

We also knew that cold storage warehousing is growing. But we never would have believed that almost one third of those in that branch of the business presently are expanding.

More details on these and other phases of this business will be found on Page 83 of this issue. We're sure that traffic managers and other distribution executives will want to keep these facts handy for ready reference. Other findings will be published in future issues.

ICC Streamlines!

Last year, somebody at the Interstate Commerce Commission figured out that, during 1959, the commissioners decided and voted on one plea every two and one-half minutes.

Here's the latest scoop: During 1960, the time per plea was cut by 36 seconds. Good! BUT the number of cases before that august body increased by 1.8 per cent!

If those figures don't amaze you, hearken: During 1959, the work backlog was so great that, if not a single new case was filed, the commissioners could have kept their pace for three months before clearing their desks!

But all of this is ancient history. As of Feb. 1, 1961, things will be different. The entire operation will be streamlined. To wit:

1. The right of appeal to the entire commission is confined to cases in which "an issue of general transportation importance is involved."

This makes so much sense that no comment is needed. However, it's worth noting that the commission expects the work load on that body to be reduced by at least 700 petitions a year!

2. Uncontested proceedings processed by the Bureau of Finance will be disposed of by three new boards composed of staff employes.

This also makes good sense. The commissioners never did their own research on these (and most) cases. They always have relied on their staff specialists. By delegating formal approval to staff experts, Division 4 commissioners will have their work load cut by more than 400 proceedings yearly. Not bad.

Which NationaLease plan fits your trucking needs?

LEASE A NEW CHEVROLET or other fine truck and operate it as your own, with no investment, no upkeep, no headaches!

© 1961 NTLS

THE CHANGE-OVER PLAN—We take over all of your present truck and maintenance problems, help you reorganize your truck facilities and personnel. We supply you with new vehicles, engineered and painted to your exact requirements, or will buy and recondition your present fleet.

THE ADD-A-TRUCK PLAN—As your business expands, don't use vital capital for more trucks, lease new ones as needed.

THE TRUCK RETIREMENT PLAN—As each truck in your fleet needs replacement, instead of buying a new one, lease it. In a few years all your vehicles are leased.

THE PILOT PLAN—Instead of switching from ownership to leasing in all locations, select one location (or division) for a "pilot" operation using full-service leased trucks, comparing costs and headaches with trucks which you still own and maintain.

LEASE FOR PROFIT—NATIONALEASE full-service truckleasing supplies everything but the driver. Licensed, insured trucks, engineered and painted to your needs, garaged and expertly maintained. ONE invoice, NO worries. Devote your full time, ALL your capital to your own business!

"Young man," said the veteran civil service employe to the new clerk, "I like you. I would like to give you some advice. Discard that pencil and use these furnished by the Bureau.

"Let me tell you why: A wooden lead pencil not only is a working tool it's a way of life.

"Having several pencils on your desk —freshly sharpened—looks very professional. You can have only one kind of lead. I have two No. 1s, two No. 2s, and two No. 3s.

"Clerical work is confining and sedentary. Because these pencils need sharpening, I am able to get up once every hour and walk to the sharpener. These walks are a form of exercise. They also help to rest my eyes.

"Walking to the sharpener also will be good for you socially. You will meet others there and get better acquainted. You will pick up bits of news. You might get invited to join our bowling team or other social affairs.

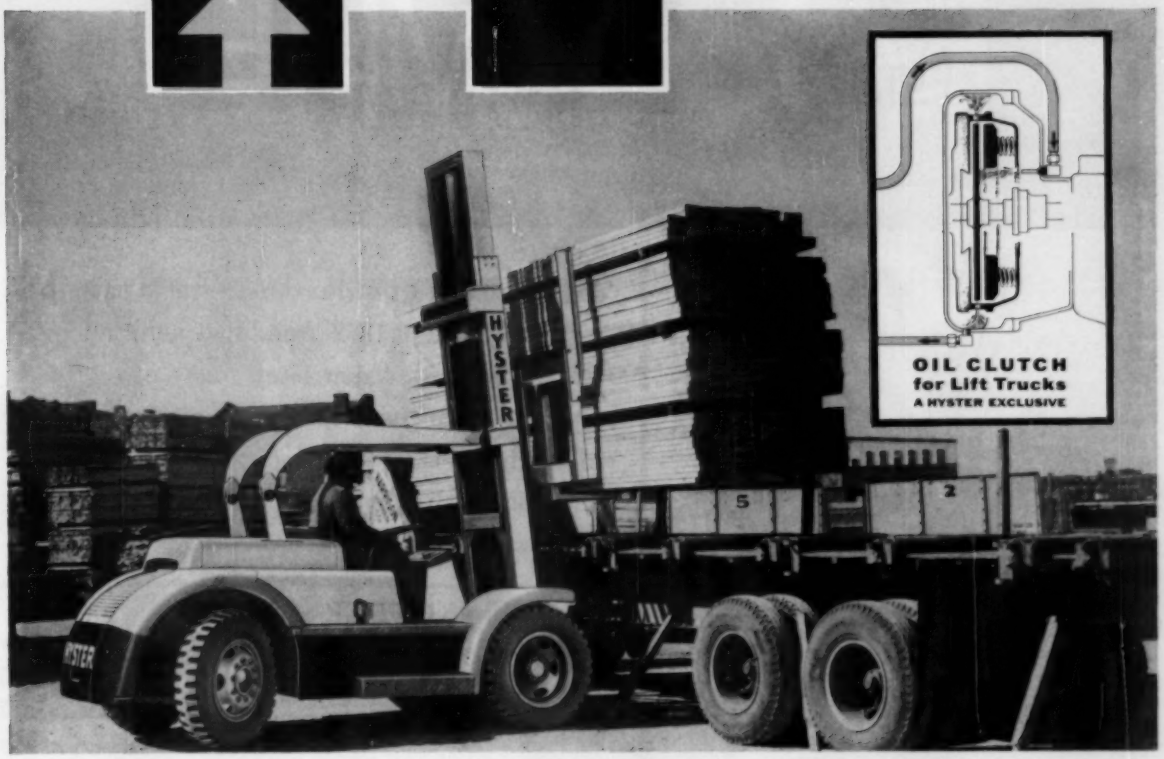

"Your supervisor will be pleased to see you sharpen your pencils. It will prove that you are wearing out lead. It shows that you're not daydreaming or asleep at your desk.

"Finally, I see that your eraser is well worn. This is bad. It shows that you've made many mistakes. Look at my erasers — never used. This looks very efficient. Keep a large eraser in your middle drawer. Put it back after every use. This doesn't advertise the fact that you make mistakes."

By this time, the young man couldn't contain his admiration. "Golly, sir, thank you very much! There are tricks in every trade."

The veteran smiled. "Allow me to rephrase that. 'There are techniques to every profession.' See you in an hour."

WASHINGTON DA

By Neil R. Regeimbal, Chilton Washington News Bureau

BOLSTER STATE TAXES — The U. S. Supreme Court has struck down another challenge to state taxation powers. Last year, the high court affirmed the right of a state (Louisiana) to tax the earnings of a shoe manufacturer. The company had argued that it owned no property in the state, operated no sales offices, maintained no warehouses. In the new case, the high court denied a similar challenge by a steel company (Armco) to a Michigan tax on company sales. Armco argued that Michigan's tax on a share of its income was an undue burden on commerce.

PLAN FREE PICKETING—President Kennedy has pledged to lead the fight for relaxing restrictions on picketing. Spokesmen for the AFL-CIO craft unions say the new President has agreed to push hard for softening present picketing restrictions. He sponsored a measure in Congress to do this. It was never voted on.

HIGHER TARIFFS SEEN—Higher tariffs on some foreign imports may be back soon. Presidential and congressional action in 1961 is geared toward a reappraisal of U. S. tariffs. The U. S. Supreme Court inadvertently aided such action by refusing to review a decision limiting the President's power in "escape clause" cases. The court let stand a ruling requiring the President to accept or reject, but not change, Tariff Commission recommendations to assist U. S. industries in "escaping" harm from foreign imports.

NEW TRAFFIC SIGNS—Modernized traffic signs are in the works. U. S. Bureau of Public Roads has adopted new signs recommended by the American Association of State Highway Officials. The plan will make "hundreds of thousands" of signs now in use obsolete. It calls for some signs to be made larger, changed location along highways, and making signs uniform in color. New signs will be required on new roads now, and be used when replacing existing ones.

AID AILING FIRMS—President Kennedy will soon begin to throw props under sagging industries. The new President will first try to lift basic industries, particularly steel, out of the doldrums with new easy money policies in the hope of spurring private investment and sales. He will try to get from Congress new programs of government public works, school construction, home construction, and similar projects by which he hopes the government can spur the economy.

ICC SPEEDUP PLANNED—Everett Hutchinson, new chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, is planning new procedures designed to speed decisions, cut the case backlog, and reduce the costs of litigation. Chairman Hutchinson, 45, is an Austin, Tex., Democrat. He succeeds John H. Winchell under the ICC practice of rotating the chairmanship each year.

LABOR BARGAINING SET—Several major industries, including trucking, will negotiate new union wage contracts this year. In total, the U. S. Labor Department reports, 120 major union contracts affecting 2 million workers will be negotiated during the year. Government labor officials again predict a "tough" labor year. Union demands will be heavy, company resistance strong, and the possibility several major strikes.

FIGHT PIGGY-BACK — The powerful Teamster Union is urging its 1.8 million members to join the trucking industry fight against railroad piggybacking and "discriminatory" rail freight rates. In a specal brochure and two articles in its national magazine, "Teamster," the Union accuses the ICC and the railroad industry of becoming a "combination" to destroy competing transportation and give the railroads a monopoly.

RESTRICT AGENCIES—A new federal law clamping tight "conflict of interest" restrictions on state government employes who handle federal funds is likely to come out of current probe of state highway building programs. Rep. Frank M. Clark, D., Pa., member of the Highway Investigating Subcommittee, has already proposed such a law. Testimony has uncovered alleged kickbacks and undercover payments to state officials. The law would permit federal prosecution for misdeeds when federal funds were involved.

NEW TRUCK REFRIGERATION — Researchers from the U. S. Department of Agriculture say the use of liquid nitrogen is "promising" for refrigerating trucks delivering frozen foods to retail outlets. New system involves spraying liquid nitrogen at a temperature of 320 deg below 0, F. directly onto the cargo. The system replaces the warm air in the truck with cold, dry nitrogen, instead of gradually cooling the air inside the truck. Copies of the report (AMS-426) on the test may be obtained free from the Agricultural Marketing Service, Washington, D. C.

U. S. Census Shows Growth In Public Warehousing

America's public warehouse industry is growing. The number of establishments jumped from 7408 to 8447 between 1954 and 1958. The total number of employes in warehousing is nearing 100,000

REVENUE of public warehouses in the U. S. during 1958 totaled $936,325,000, an increase of $192,023,000 or 25.8 per cent since 1954. This was revealed by the U. S. Department of Commerce in releasing its preliminary report on Public Warehousing in 1958. The charts on this and the next page, except for the table at the right, are from the Census of Business. Since all figures in the other tables do not include warehouses without employes, this small chart is published to give a complete picture of the industry.

Keys to Warehouse Selection

Transport Factors to be Considered

- Consider distance from warehouse to factory.
- Consider carload freight rates from factory to warehouse which may sometimes involve a combined rail and water rate.
- Consider the less-carload freight rate from the warehouse to customers, including the possibilities of using truck service.
- Consider the transit time of less-carload freight from a warehouse to final stop.
- Consider package-car services available to the warehouse.
- Consider all warehouse charges.

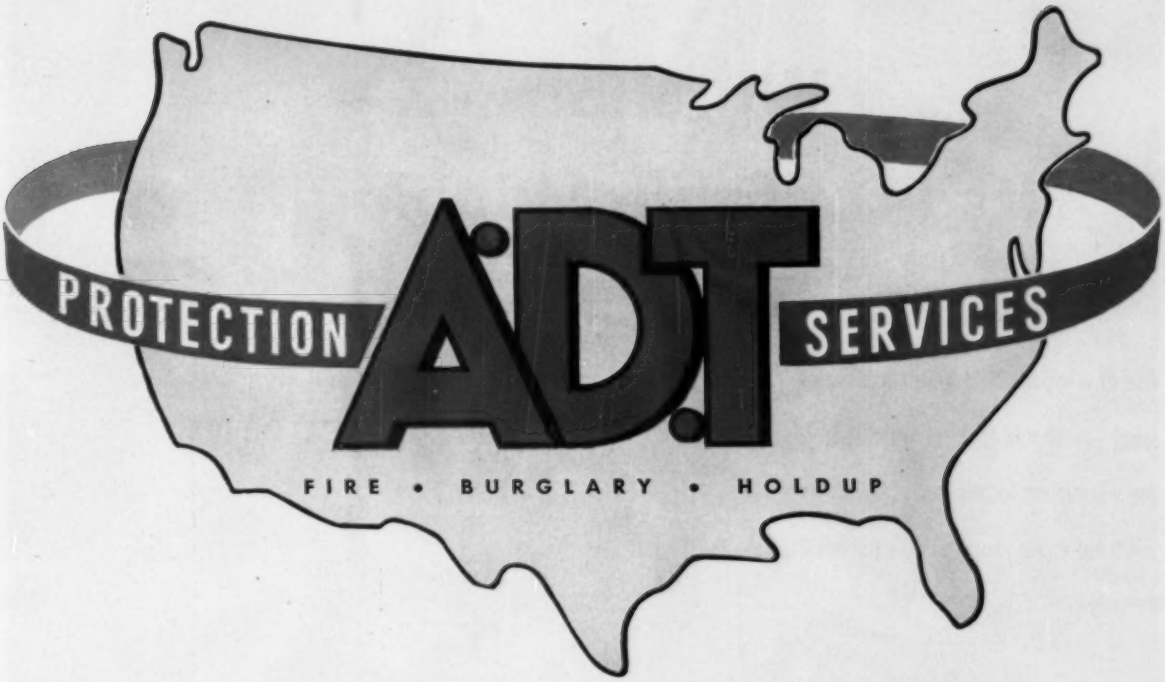

Territory Which May Be Economically Served from a Warehouse

In every plan of distribution there are some points at which two total costs—one direct to the customer and one to the customer via a merchandise warehouse — are equal. They are the break-even points defining the outermost limits of the territory which can be served economically by a particular warehouse.

The accompanying illustration shows a typical case with the distance in miles between factory and warehouse equated against the freight rate in cents per hundred pounds. "A" and "A'" are the two intersections of the total cost curves. They are the break-even points. The territory economically served by the particular warehouse to which this chart would apply is that area between "A" and "A'" indicated by the dotted lines perpendicular to the base line.

In practice, the freight rate curves are not the smooth, evenly rising lines which are used here for purposes of illustration.

From coast to coast, thousands of industrial, commercial and institutional establishments have discovered the economy of using ADT automatic protection to safeguard life, property, and profits against fire, burglary, holdup, sabotage and other hazards.

The leader in automatic property protection, ADT manufactures, installs, maintains and operates the most modern protection systems available anywhere. ADT electric and electronic systems are specifically designed to provide maximum security at lowest cost. Thousands of ADT subscribers enjoy substantial savings over other, less dependable and far more expensive methods of guarding their properties. At the same time, they are assured of the most reliable protection available.

ADT central stations are located in principal cities. In other areas, ADT systems may be connected directly to police and fire departments. These systems are fully maintained and regularly tested by ADT specialists.

Warehouse X— Its Profitable Shipping Area

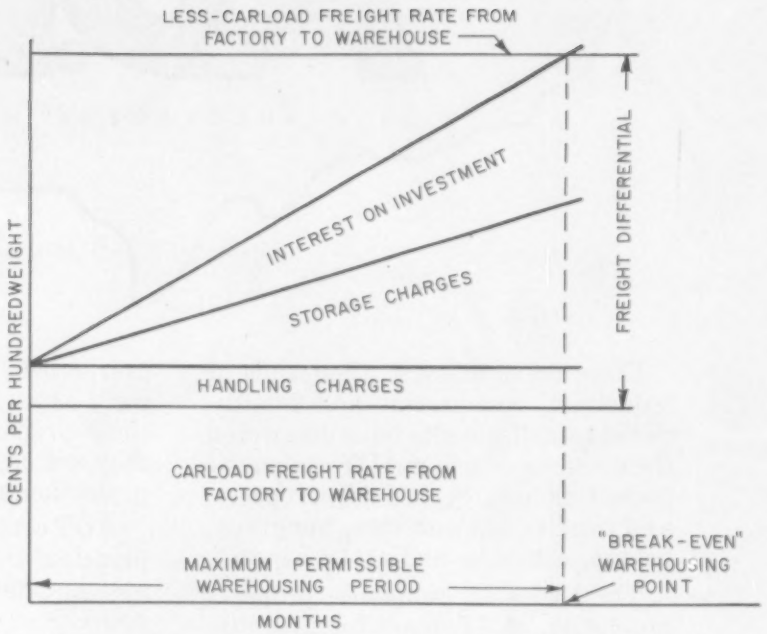

Use of a hypothetical warehouse shows what you should look for when selecting warehouse locations. Service costs need not equal your market's potential

From a sales standpoint, one of the primary reasons for selecting particular general merchandise warehouse locations is the ability of one location to render better service to customers than would be possible in another.

When the sum of warehouse handling charges, warehouse storage charges, and interest on the investment in the stock under consideration accumulates to a total equal to the difference between the less-carload or less-truckload and carload or truckload freight rates, the breakeven warehousing point has been reached and the warehousing period is at its maximum.

When the sales volume in the warehouse territory, within the maximum permissible warehousing period, is more than the minimum weight on which a carload or truckload rate may be obtained, there is a gain through carrying warehoused stock. Where this break-even point would be for a particular case is shown in the accompanying illustration.

You should remember that there are certain competitive conditions in each territory and city which may demand immediate deliveries from a warehoused stock even though direct shipment from the factory may be more economical.

The following questions might be answered by the person faced with warehouse selection from the sales standpoint:

1. Are present customers in the area under survey purchasing as much of the product as they can use?

2. If not, is it because they do not anticipate their needs and are often forced to buy locally in emergencies?

3. If customers are securing a portion of their requirements from local sources, are they putting competitors' goods on their shelves (if retailers) or into production (if industrial users), thus opening the door to competition which will make further inroads into present volume?

4. Will a spot stock give more volume on long-profit items or is the manufacturer now getting the cream of the local volume?

5. Will a spot stock merely throw the manufacturers a bigger volume of the high-competition items in the line (the low-profit items)? Or can a spot stock be used to induce dealers to carry the whole line instead of few fast-selling items?

6. What will the wholesalers or distributors think of the spot stocks? Will they welcome them as an aid or will they condemn them as making it easier for small competitors to obtain the manufacturer's goods at wholesale?

THE SHORTEST DISTANCE BETWEEN TWO POINTS IS:

IML's "TOTAL SERVICE"

Points to Check . . .

When Storing Out of State

- Will the maintenance of spot stocks render the company liable to compliance with the foreign corporation laws of another state?
- What is the law of the state in question? Is it enforced?
- What is the penalty for failure to comply with the law?
- Does failure to comply invalidate contracts within the state?
- What local agent appointments for service of process are required within the state and how much will they cost?
- What is the initial cost of qualifying to do business, including filing fees, initial tax, and other costs?
- What is the annual cost of qualifying to do business, including annual filing fees, franchise levy, annual corporation tax, and annual income tax if one is levied?
- Is it best to qualify the parent company, incorporate a local subsidiary within the state, or distribute from some adjacent state to keep within the definition of interstate commerce?

On Warehouse Ownership and Credit

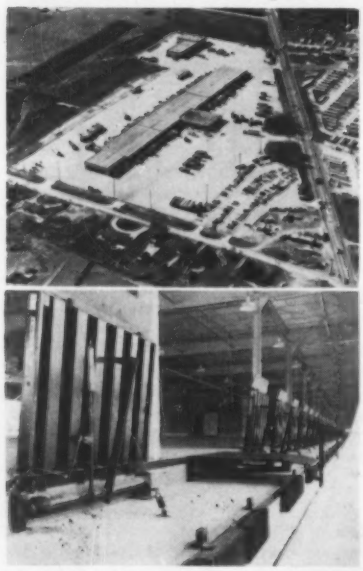

- The location and complete overall description of the warehouse.
- The ownership of the warehouse and its officers if it is incorporated.
- Assets, varying with the nature and size of the warehousing establishment.
- Competence of the warehouse management.
- Inspection of the warehouse by competent state authority to check suitability, compliance with building codes, insurance requirements.
- Agreement from the warehouse management to serve the public without discrimination between patrons and with equal rates for services.

Aluminum Railroad Car

This aluminum railroad car was developed by Harvey Aluminum in cooperation with the Rock Island Lines and North American Car Corp. It is designed to provide protective shipment for long-length loads. The 85-ft long gondola car has an 8-ton payload increase over steel equipment. There are six huge aluminum extrusions, 82 ft long x 25 in. wide. Three of these channel sections are stacked longitudinally and mechanically joined to form each side. For the roof, panel-type aluminum extrusions were fabricated into four 20-ft sections, easily removable for freight handling

How Warehouse Rates Are Set

Here are the 12 principal factors considered by public merchandise warehousemen in calculating storage and handling charges for articles offered to them for storage. Such charges vary from city to city and fluctuate in relation to weight, size, and nature of the articles being stored.

1. The type of package in which a commodity is offered for storage. Packages in respect to types may be either (a) bags, cartons, cases, crates, and metal ingots, or (b) bales, bundles, cooperage, pails, rolls, and tubs. Warehousemen have found that cost differences occur in handling rather than in storage of (a) or (b).

2. The weight and density of the package offered for storage. Cost of handling and storing packages of a given type varies in accordance with weight per package and with the density per package. Density is the relation of volume to weight expressed in terms of cubic inches per pound.

3. The value of the commodity and of the services required.

4. Whether or not the commodity is particularly fragile.

5. Liability to claims on the part of the warehouseman for damage to the commodity while in his custody.

6. The volume of business offered by the commodity. Commodities flowing through a warehouse in large and regular volume can naturally be charged for at a lower rate than those arriving in small quantities at irregular periods.

7. Possibility of damaging other goods through odor, leakage, attraction to vermin, dust, etc.

8. Difficulty in handling goods because of their hazardous nature, dust, odor, or mussiness, etc.

9. Whether or not goods need be protected from freezing or kept in cold storage.

10. Whether or not it is necessary to isolate the goods completely because of their hazardous nature.

11. Whether or not the goods need to be stored in a way that allows easy access for examination or treatment.

12. Piling requirements such as loss of space due to type of package or type of commodity, size of package, necessity for special piling, legibility of marks on packages, assortment of packages, etc.

A Check Chart for Accurate Price Quotations

Services Required

1. Do you require negotiable warehouse receipts, non-negotiable ones?

2. Type of storage required: inside or outside?

3. Which of the following will be required: payment of shipments, collection of C.O.D.'s, physical inventories, list of each shipment showing consignee and merchandise shipped?

4. Will warehouse be required to keep dealer credit records?

5. Will you furnish the following made out, partially made out, or blank, and in each case what will be the number of copies: (a) bills of lading, (b) sight drafts, (c) invoices, (d) labels or stencils, (e) packing lists?

6. Must first-in items be first out?

7. Must goods be stored by serial number and/or weight?

8. Must serial number and/or weight be reported for each shipment?

9. Are mechanical accounting system tags used?

10. Will the goods be withdrawn by serial number?

11. Will goods be required to break-bulk?

12. Estimated total square feet required during the year based on present storage: (a) minimum low, (b) maximum high.

13. Will local delivery be required in addition to storage and handling inside the warehouse?

14. Will goods arrive by, and how many estimated during the year: (a) carload, (b) poolcar, (c) truckload?

15. Will goods be shipped from warehouse in (a) carloads, (b) poolcars, (c) damage-free cars, (d) less-carloads, (e) truckloads?

16. Is new dunnage required? If so, will you supply it or do you wish the warehouse to re-use your dunnage as received?

Nature of the Commodity

1. Name and freight classification.

2. How packed—whether in wooden cases, fibre cases or cartons, barrels, drums, or other containers.

3. Dimensions—height, length, and width of each size and type of package.

4. Gross weight of each size and type of package.

5. Wholesale valuation of each size and type package.

6. Stacking height limit set by weight and type of particular packages.

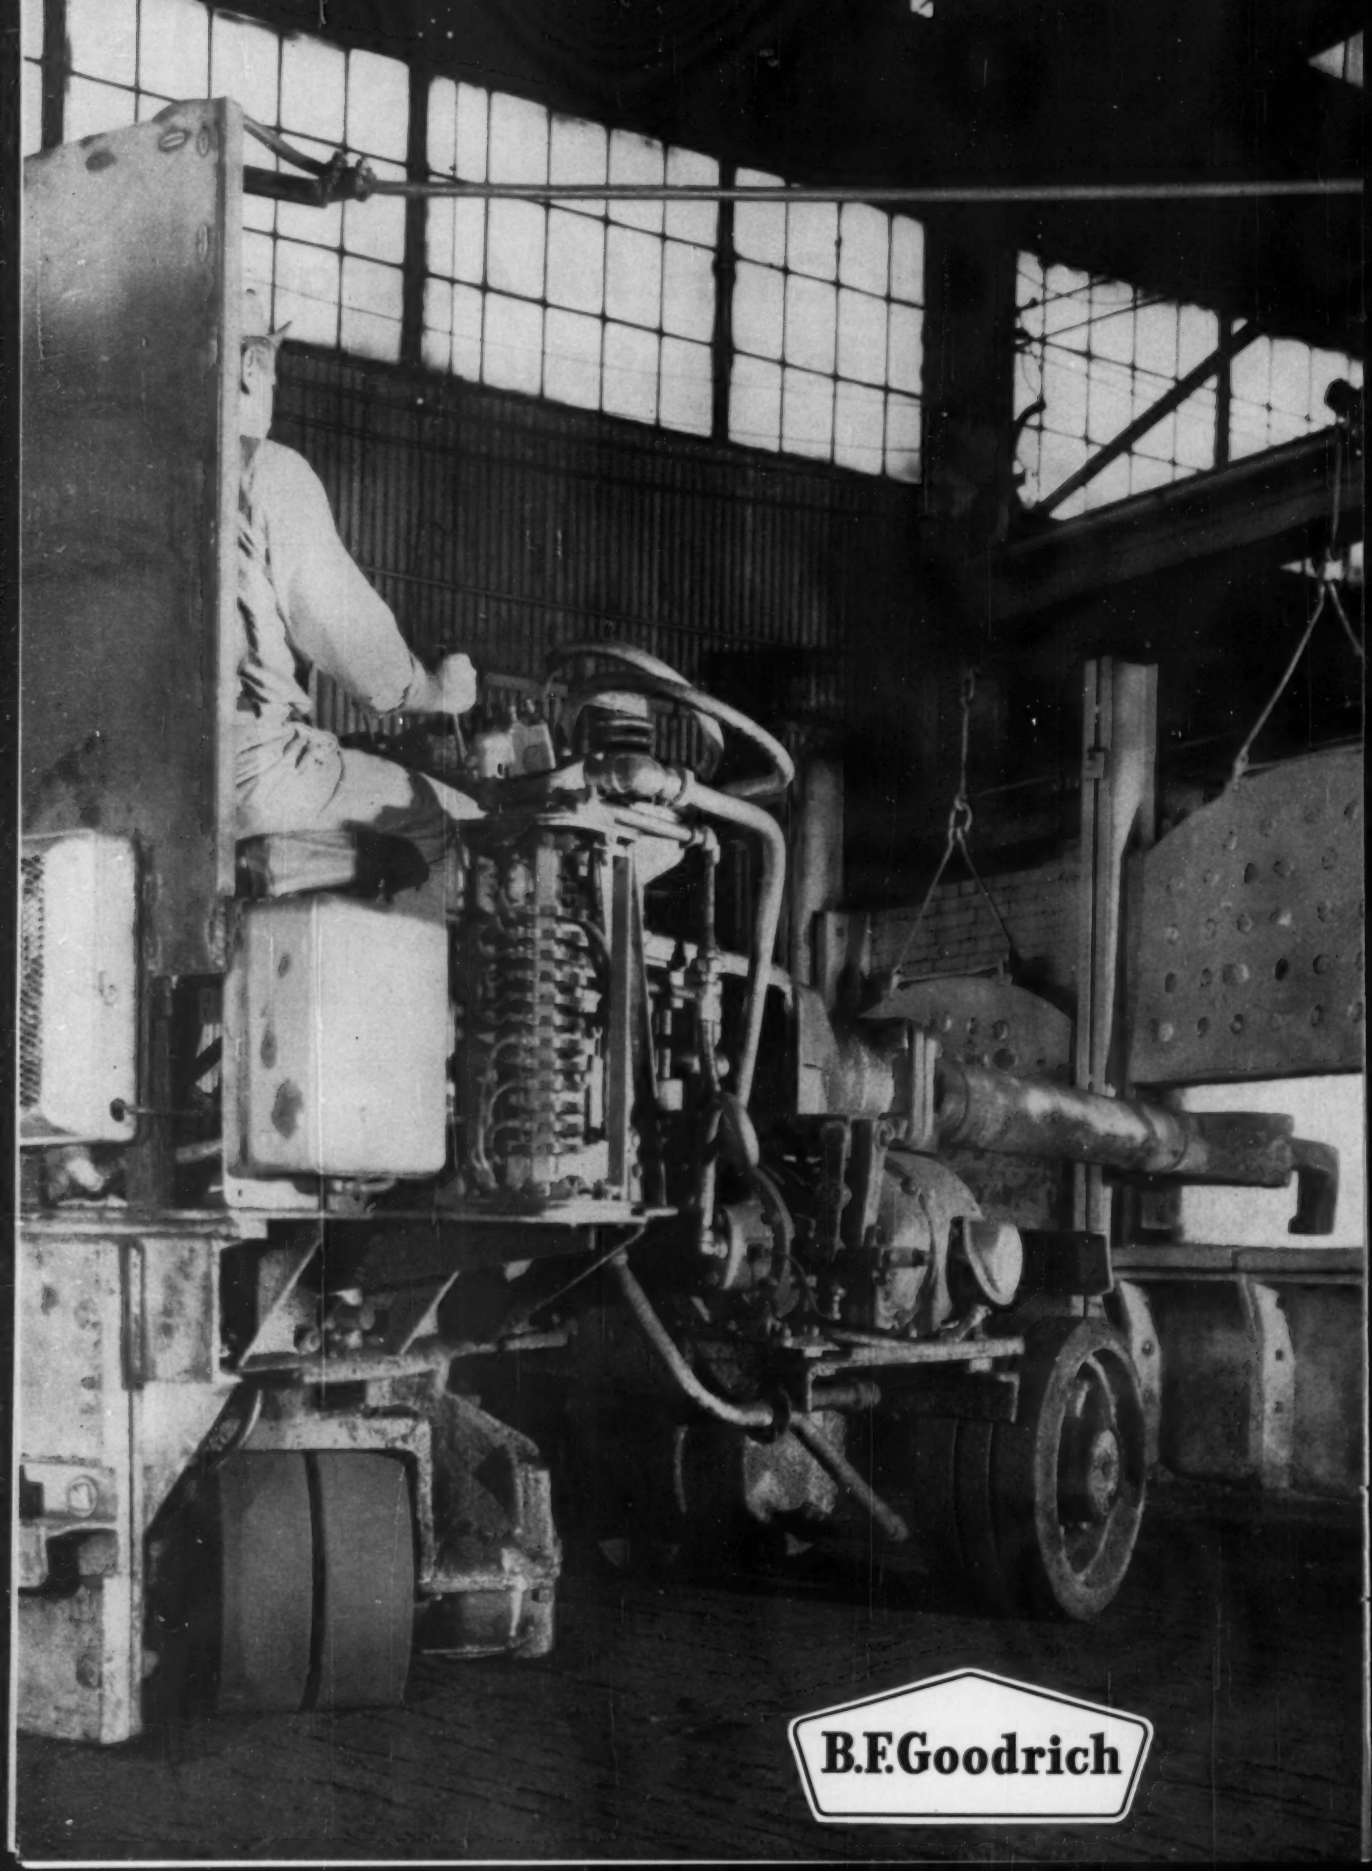

7. Quantity per carload, combined with other items if necessary.

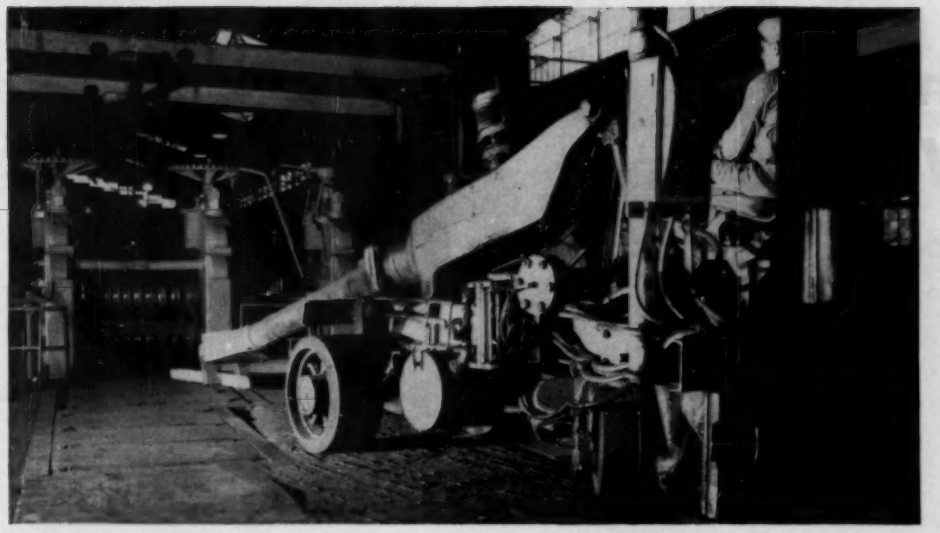

8. Fastest moving items.

9. Quantity to be stored divided into monthly or two-month intervals.

10. The number of different brands or styles of the commodity and the size of each package.

11. Is the commodity subject to being isolated, hazardous, perishable, frozen, or heat damaged?

B.F.Goodrich

RED-HOT STEEL BARS travel from Jessop's heat treating furnace (photo at left) to rolling mill (above) on new B.F.Goodrich Novitane solid industrial tires. Ordinary tires used to go to pieces in 2 months or less, but Chief Engineer S. W. Moore writes, "The wearing quality of BFG Novitane tires is more than 3 times that of any other tire we've ever used. Downtime and maintenance costs are decreased."

New B.F.Goodrich industrial tires put a damper on hot-steel handling problems

JESSOP STEEL CO. GETS 3 TIMES MORE TIRE SERVICE BY FOLLOWING TW ANALYSIS MAN'S ADVICE

Razor-sharp steel scrap, red-hot scale and grease and oil once presented a terrific problem to Jessop Steel Co., Washington, Pa. Ordinary tires on the Auto-Floor Charging machine (used to deliver steel bars to the heat treating furnace and rolling mill) were being torn to pieces in 2 months or less. Tire costs skyrocketed. Efficiency dropped.

Then Jessop called in the B.F.Goodrich Tire & Wheel Analysis Man. He studied the whole problem, then recommended a switch to new B.F.Goodrich Novitane tires. These tires are made of a new BFG-developed polyurethane compound that shrugs off the materials which kill regular tires. The Novitane tires pictured have been on the job over 5 months. Try to find a sign of wear on them.

This case history is typical of the savings B.F.Goodrich Tire & Wheel Analysis Men offer. Without cost or obligation, the TW Analysis Man will study your setup—floors, loads, equipment, etc. Then he'll recommend the BFG tires that will give longest service at lowest cost—advice that is unbiased because B.F.Goodrich makes a complete line of industrial tires. The Warehouse Receipt

◆ A warehouse receipt is not a fire insurance policy or any other class of insurance policy, and the storer or banker holding such a receipt as collateral should see that adequate insurance is provided.

◆ A warehouse receipt is not a guarantee of grade and should not be depended on for that purpose unless it is specifically stated on the receipt that the grade of the commodities represented thereby is guaranteed by the warehouseman. Few if any warehousemen are qualified to determine the grade of the various commodities stored. Grade or quality certificates covering agricultural products placed in storage can be secured easily from those sufficiently conversant with the type of commodities warehoused to qualify them to issue a grade certificate on such commodities.

◆ A warehouse receipt is not a guarantee of title any more than a mortgage is a guarantee of title, as the storer of commodities can only transfer to the warehouseman and to the holder of his warehouse receipts that title to the deposited commodities which the storer possesses. The title which the storer possesses passes with the transfer by indorsement (without indorsement if issued by the order of "bearer") of a warehouse receipt if non-negotiable. It is, however, a well-understood and elementary principle of law that the transfer of a warehouse receipt in good faith and in the ordinary course of business operates to transfer the title to the commodities covered by such receipt.

Must Specify

- The location of the warehouse where the commodities are stored.
- The date of issue of the warehouse receipt.
- The consecutive number of the warehouse receipt.
- Whether the commodities received will be delivered to the bearer, to a specified person, or a specified person or his order.
- The rate of storage. This can be included by reference to the warehousing agreement between the depositor and the warehouseman.
- A description of the commodities or the packages containing them.
- The signature of the warehouseman—which may be made by his authorized agent.
- If the warehouse receipt is issued for commodities of which the warehouseman is owner, either solely, jointly, or in common with others, the fact of such ownership.
- The amount of advances made and of liabilities incurred for which the warehouseman claims a lien. If the precise amount of such advances made or such liabilities incurred is at the time of receipt's issue unknown to the warehouseman or his agent who issues it, a statement that advances have been made or liabilities incurred and the purpose thereof is sufficient and may be included on the warehouse agreement between the depositor of the commodities covered by such warehouse receipt and the warehouseman.

Advantages as Collateral

- They may be used as the basis for bankers' acceptances.
- They may be negotiable or nonnegotiable, as desired.
- They give independent custodianship of the goods.
- They clearly define the liability of the warehouseman.
- They may be used as security for personal loans.
- They are standardized, recognized credit instruments.
- They have strong legal and financial backing.

Negotiable Receipts

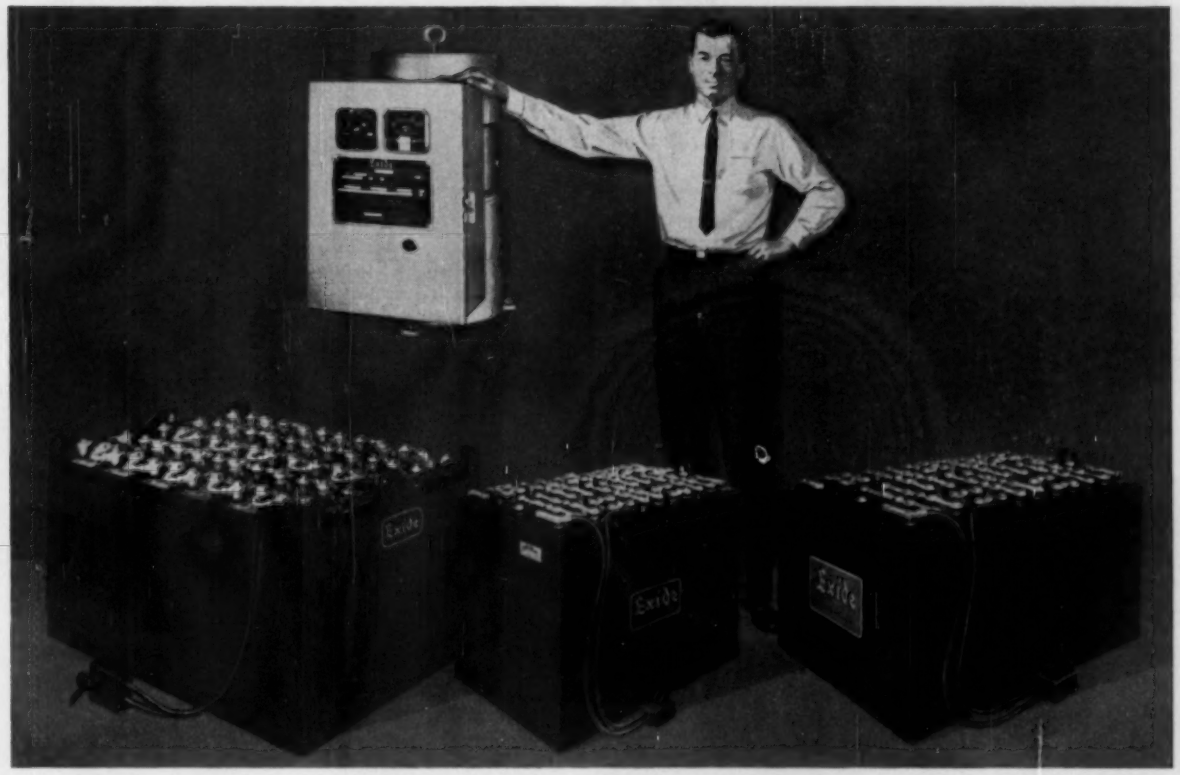

- May be passed from hand to hand by endorsement and without endorsement if issued order of "bearer."
- If negotiable receipt provides for commodity delivery to "bearer," it may be negotiated without endorsement and by simple delivery.
- If delivery is to be made to the order of specified person or company, that person or company must endorse the receipt before it can be negotiated.
- If partial delivery is required, warehouseman issuing receipt will endorse on the back the quantity delivered.
- For total commodity delivery, warehouseman will retain and cancel negotiable warehouse receipt.
- When more than one negotiable receipt is issued for the same goods, the word "duplicate" must be placed plainly on the face of each receipt, except the first one.

Nonnegotiable Receipts

- Are made out to specified persons and state that goods stored will be delivered to that person, corporate or otherwise—not to his "order."
- Must be marked plainly on its face "nonnegotiable" or "not negotiable" or holder may impose upon the warehouseman the liabilities of a negotiable receipt.
- It is not necessary to surrender a nonnegotiable warehouse receipt to the warehouseman issuing such a receipt before either partial or total delivery can be received.

Terms and Conditions of Storage

ALL PUBLIC warehouse receipts, either negotiable or non-negotiable, are subject to the following terms and conditions.

1. Tender for Storage: (a) All goods for storage shall be delivered at the warehouse properly marked and packed for handling. The storer shall furnish, at or prior to such delivery, a manifest showing marks, brands, or sizes to be kept and accounted for separately and the class of storage desired. Otherwise the goods may be stored in bulk or assorted lots, in freezer, cooler, or general storage at the discretion of the warehouseman and will be charged for accordingly.

(b) The word "lot" as used herein means the unit or units of goods for which a separate account is to be kept by the warehouseman. Delivery of all or any units of a lot shall not be made without subsequent sorting except by special arrangement and subject to a charge.

(c) The warehouseman undertakes to store and deliver the goods only in the packages in which they are originally received. Note: This provision is modified often to permit warehousemen to make less-than-full-package deliveries.

2. Storage Period: (a) All goods are stored on a month-to-month basis, unless otherwise provided. A storage month shall extend from a date in one calendar month to, but not including, the same date of the next and all succeeding calendar months. But if there be no corresponding date in the next succeeding calendar month, it shall extend to and include the last day of that month.

When the last day of a final storage month falls on Sunday or a legal holiday, the storage month shall be deemed to expire on the next succeeding business day. (b) Except where other procedures are provided by the Uniform Warehouse Receipts Act, the warehouseman may, upon written notice to the storer of record and to any other person known by the warehouseman to claim an interest in the goods, require the removal of any goods by the end of the next succeeding storage month.

Such notice shall be given by delivery in person or by registered letter addressed to the last known place of business or abode of the person to be notified.

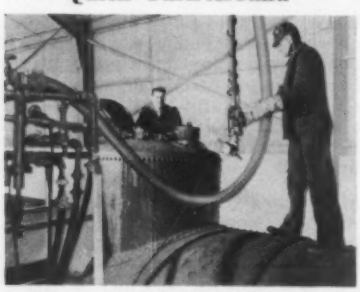

3. Insurance, Storage Rates, Expiration and Transfers: (a) All charges for storage are on a month-to-month basis unless otherwise provided. Charges for any particular lot shall begin at the receipt of the first unit of that particular lot in store and shall continue and include the storage month during which the last unit of the particular lot is delivered.

Charges shall be made on the basis of the maximum number of units in any particular lot in store during a storage month. All charges for storage are due on the first day of a storage month, and all other charges are due when incurred. (b) Instructions to transfer goods on the books of the warehouseman are not effective until delivered to and accepted by him. All charges up to the time transfer is made are chargeable to the storer of record. If a transfer is made involving rehandling of goods, it will be subject to a charge.

(c) The warehouseman reserves the right to move, at his own expense of transfer, and upon notice

(d) When rates are quoted by weight, they will, unless otherwise specified, be computed on gross weight, and 2000 lb shall constitute a ton.

(e) Goods are not insured nor do storage rates include insurance unless so specified in writing. (In any state requiring insurance by statute, the words "or required by statute" would be considered a part of the standard terms and conditions.)

But they do not include unloading or loading of cars, vessels, or vehicles unless so specified. Handling charges will be billed with the storage for the first month. (b) When a negotiable receipt has been issued, no goods covered by that receipt shall be delivered or transferred on the books of the warehouseman unless the receipt, properly indorsed, is surrendered for cancellation or for indorsement of partial delivery thereon.

(c) When goods are ordered out, a reasonable time shall be given the warehouseman to carry out instructions. If he is unable, due to causes beyond his control, to effect delivery before expiring storage dates, the goods will be subject to charges for another storage month. This is true except when the warehouseman has given notice in accordance with the provisions of section 2b, or because of fire, Acts of God, war, public enemies, seizure under legal process, strikes or lockouts, riots, and civil commotions. If he is unable, due to causes beyond his control, to effect delivery before the expiring date, the goods shall be subject to storage charges for only that part of the month during which the goods remain in store.

(b) Stock statements submitted in duplicate by the storer will be checked with the books of the warehouseman without charge. (c) Shipping includes marking, tagging, billing, procuring, and forwarding bills of lading. It is chargeable to the storer. (d) Freight and other disbursements made on behalf of the storer are due and payable on demand and subject to interest from date billed by the warehouseman. (e) Storers, including holders of negotiable receipts, may, subject to insurance regulations and reasonable limitations, have access to their goods in store when accompanied by a warehouse employe whose time is chargeable to the storer.

10. Liability: (a) The responsibility of a warehouseman, in the absence of written provisions, is the reasonable care and diligence required by law. (b) Perishable goods, or goods which are susceptible to damage through temperature changes or other causes incident to general storage, are accepted in general storage only at owner's risk for such damages as might result from general storage conditions.

11. Schedule or Charges: Whenever possible provision is made in these standard contract terms and conditions for a charge or charges by the warehouseman, such charges or charge will conform to the warehouseman's tariff in effect at the time the charge accrues or the service is performed, except that no increase in charges within the direct control of the warehouseman will be made on goods that are in storage without a 30-day notice mailed to the storer of record. ●

A Look at Warehouse Safety

A central station of American District Telegraph's automatic sprinkler system with tape registers receiving fire alarm signals

A WAREHOUSE fire could turn out to be the biggest instance of spilt milk you ever cried over. Aside from common sense, the best protection against a warehouse fire may be found in an automatic sprinkler system or alarm installation. Both are essential to good warehousekeeping and certainly indispensable in time of fire. Of course, when the fire is raging it is too late to make a purchase or handle installation. So evaluate and plan now.

There are many considerations to make before you pick and install the correct fire-fighting system. You may have special problems which cannot be remedied by a typical installation.

The number of systems on the market illustrates the variety of protection problems. There are wet, dry, deluge, thermostatic, open sprinkler, and non-freezing solution systems.

You should consider the control and adequacy of water supply, fire areas, devices to test water flow in relation to fire or leakage, detectors and alarms, accelerators, exhausters, air supply for dry pipe systems, and thermostats for preaction systems. Also valves, dry valves, check valves, tank heaters, post indicator valves for section control, corrosion, and pollution.

There are details of your building's construction which you should be aware of too. They include floor tightness, curtain boards, and scruppers plus electrical equipment, supervisory systems for outside aid, and steam pressure.

Know and practice the rules for safe storage and handling of Class 1 and 2 flammable liquids. Handled or stored incorrectly, they can cause or add to a disastrous fire.

Detailed on these pages are alarm and sprinkler systems, maintenance suggestions, and advice on flammable liquid storage.

Fire Alarm Systems

FIRE ALARM systems can be either predominantly manual or automatic. In most instances the automatic systems offer more constant and flawless protection against fire or detection of it before it becomes unmanageable.

There are several of both types. Among the manual class there are:

* Clock and dial system:

Watchman is the central figure. He uses portable clock with dial. Key at each station throughout warehouse is used by watchman to record the time of his visit.

* Key and dial system:

Dial is set up in central office. Watchman's single key sends impulse from boxes spaced throughout warehouse. Clock mechanism has perforation on the dial. It serves as a graph.

* Magneto and dial system:

Watchman rotates the magneto to send impulse to clock. Similar to the key and dial plan.

* Suppressed signal system:

Combination of intermediate boxes. They interrupt signal until last box reports in. The system is tied in to central station. Failure of each box to report in sequence shows trouble.

With these systems, except the latter, each morning the dial is checked to determine whether a watchman has made his rounds properly. The protective flaw appears when something happens to the watchman during his rounds. It is possible, also, for a watchman to toy with the system in order to falsify his tour report.

Automatic Plans

Among automatic fire alarm systems, the central station and auxiliary types are most common.

 Central station:

Is supervisory type. Automatic to central station. The station is manned 24 hours a day. Alarm is sent from station to nearest fire department. Station men are dispatched to origin of alarm. Trouble signals on line are checked out. Such a system is installed at annual service charge under control of the installing company.

 Auxiliary:

Is not supervisory. Automatic to alarm box of local city service. Actuated by electrical or battery current. Trouble signals record on panel on premises. Has circuit-closing switches tied to municipal circuit. Not observed by watchman. Sold outright. Maintenance becomes your responsibility.

 Smoke detectors:

Use a beam of light. Its interruption energizes photo-electric cell to either break or complete electric current circuit. Smoke alarms may have provisions for connection of supplementary circuit for actuation of equipment controlling blowers, fans, shutters at the time of signal. Smoke detector should be installed so as to minimize the possibility of operation due to accumulation of dust, moisture, deterioration of equipment. Photo-electric light beams should be located or enclosed so that movement within the space protected will not trigger the alarm falsely.

There are variations of the central station system.

 Compulsory night watch tour service:

Watchman is required to make his tour of the warehouse in a predetermined way. He must ring all dummy stations if he is to ring from transmitting station at tour's end, signalling the central station. Office is signalled at start and finish of route.

 Central station watchman security service:

Only one station. From it watchman signals off at start and finish.

Sprinkler Systems

SPRINKLER systems offer your warehouse built-in protection against fire. Automatic systems can be classified into five types.

* Wet pipe system:

One employing automatic sprinklers attached to a piping system containing water and connected to a water supply so that water discharges immediately from sprinklers opened by a fire.

* Dry pipe system:

Employs automatic sprinklers attached to a piping system containing air under pressure, the release of which as from the opening of sprinklers permits the water pressure to open a valve known as a dry pipe valve. Water then flows into the piping system and out the open sprinklers.

* Pre-action system:

Uses automatic sprinklers attached to a piping system containing air that may or may not be under pressure with a supplemental heat responsive system of generally more sensitive characteristics than the automatic sprinklers, installed in the same area as the sprinklers. Actuation of the heat responsive system, as from a fire, opens a valve which allows water to flow into the sprinkler piping system and then discharge from sprinklers which may be open.

* Deluge system:

Has open sprinklers attached to a piping system connected to a water supply through a valve which is opened by the operation of a heat responsive system installed in the same areas as the sprinklers. When the valve opens, water flows into the piping system and is discharged from all sprinklers attached.

* Combined dry pipe and pre-action system:

Automatic sprinklers attached to a piping system containing air under pressure with a supplemental heat responsive system of generally more sensitive characteristics than the automatic sprinklers, installed in the same areas as the sprinklers. Operation actuates tripping devices which open dry pipe valves simultaneously and without loss of air pressure in the system. Operation of the system also opens approved air exhaust valves at the end of the feed main which facilitates the filling of the system with water which usually precedes the opening of sprinklers. Heat responsive system also serves as an automatic fire alarm system.

Often it is advisable to include a connection through which a public fire department can pump water into the sprinkler system as an auxiliary supply. One or more fire department connections should be included. For fire engine connections, pipe size should not be less than 4 in. and not less than 6 in. for fireboat connections.

A local alarm unit is an assembly of apparatus approved for the service and constructed and installed so that any water flow from a sprinkler system equal to or greater than that from a single automatic sprinkler will result in an audible alarm signal on the premises.

* Water flow alarms should be provided on all sprinkler installations. Central station water flow alarm service is best, but central station water flow alarm service does not necessarily waive the local alarm requirement.

* Either outdoor water motor or electric alarm gongs should be installed in every case where there is no watchman with watch service or where sprinkler system is not provided with approved water flow alarm to a central station.

* Under conditions where central station water flow alarm service is not available it may be advisable to connect electrical alarm units to public fire department headquarters or nearest fire department station or other suitable place where aid may be readily secured.

* Wet pipe system alarms should consist of an approved alarm check valve or other approved water flow detecting alarm device with necessary attachments required to give an alarm.

* Dry pipe system alarms consist of approved alarm attachments to the dry pipe valve. When a dry pipe valve is located on the system side of an alarm valve, the actuating device of the alarms for the dry pipe valve may be connected to the alarms on the wet pipe system.

* Pre-action and deluge systems' apparatus should be actuated by a thermostatic system independently of flow of water in the system. A mechanical alarm, water motor gong, may also be required.

Stored materials on racks and shelving should be kept at least 18 in. below sprinkler deflectors in order not to interfere with the distribution of water from spray sprinklers. Large closely packed piles of cases, bales, or cartons should be kept 3 ft below spray sprinklers.

Sprinkler Maintenance

A STANDARD system of automatic sprinklers with adequate water supply in service throughout a warehouse is often the most reliable and efficient automatic fire protection. But this true only while the system is properly maintained.

An impairment from a deposit of foreign material in the sprinkler pipes which may stop water flow can only be avoided through maintenance and system checks, like these below.

Annual Dry Pipe Test

* Tests should be made during season when there is no danger of freezing. Each valve should be operated under aproximate service conditions. Corrosion, deposits, obstructions, or minor displacement of parts may impede complete valve operation, so be sure to exert full water pressure.

* Water supply line must be thoroughly flushed before dry pipe valve is tripped or tested. Two-inch drain below valve should be opened wide and water at full pressure should be discharged to clear pipe of scale.

* If available, test valve on sprinkler should be used to give an air discharge rate at least equivalent to that resulting from the operation of an automatic sprinkler.

* If piping for any dry pipe system is continually exposed to subfreezing temperatures it is especially important to avoid flooding the system during a test.

* Following the dry pipe valve trip test, water supply to system should be shut and system drained. Dry pipe valve should be opened, and position of parts examined to check normalcy of operation.

* Rubber rings or seats should be carefully examined. If deformed or deteriorated, replace them.

* Be careful of oil and grease on rubber parts of sprinkler system. They can cause decomposition of rubber, make valve inefficient.

* Grease, soap, shellac, white lead, varnish, paper gaskets must never be used on air or water seats of the valves to make them tight. If valve cannot be made tight without such aids, it should be properly repaired by manufacturer or replaced by UL-approved valve.

* If tests show mud or scale, the system should be cleared.

* Tests should be made at frequent intervals to determine if any water is accumulating in the valve body above clapper due to condensation or back drainage by following manufacturer's instruction chart.

* Valve enclosures should have sufficient space around the valve and trimmings to permit easy access to all parts for the proper inspection, testing, maintenance.

Here are some symptoms to look out for on maintenance checks.

* Old equipment, particularly if dry pipe.

* Pipe replacements made necessary by leaks caused by interior corrosion or breakage due to freezing.

* Muddy, chemically active, or salt water supply.

* Pump with poorly protected suction from pond or stream.

* Old tanks not cleaned at regular intervals.

* Water supply from dead ends or extremities of extensive water distribution systems.

* Dry pipe systems operated now or formerly operated as wet pipe system in summer.

* Wet or dry pipe systems that have poor maintenance.

* Poor placement of underground pipe.

Obstructions can cause the biggest maintenance headaches. Here are some things you can employ to reduce such stoppages.

* Flush private hydrants semi-annually.

* Flush at system drain pipes with full flows semi-annually.

* Flush all private underground piping including fire department connections—annually.

* Don't flood system when testing dry valves.

* Allow adequate system maintenance to avoid unnecessary trippings of dry pipe valves.

* Clean tanks and reservoirs at reasonable intervals.

* Use all reasonable precautions to prevent refuse entering the tank riser when a new tank is installed or an old tank is repaired.

* Inspect pump intakes in mud bottom ponds or rivers whenever feasible and clean fire pump suction pipes.

* When installing new sprinkler equipment, flush all underground branches to inside sprinklers with the greatest flow practicable before the sprinkler riser is connected to the underground. As a minimum requirement—a flow of 500 gpm.

When you clean your sprinkler system, there are several precautions you should honor.

* When removing sprinkler heads, use proper sprinkler head wrenches. Do not use Stillson or monkey wrenches.

* Cleaning involves major interruptions. Be sure to notify your insurers, through your insurance agent, of the occasion to interrupt the protection in any part for carrying on the work.

* Care should be taken so that as little as possible of the equipment is out of service at one time for cleaning. Provisions should be made to restore sprinkler protection fully each night after work. The provision of special watchmen is helpful.

Just as a new sprinkler system is carefully examined by a representative of insurance interests, so should a reconditioned system be examined. But a certification by an experienced and responsible sprinkler contractor that the equipment has been completely cleared and is in good condition, may be found acceptable in place of re-examination.

Storing Class I and II Flammable Liquids

A collection of hints on storing flammable liquids of the Class I and II variety. Here is what you should do for safe storage of liquids from acetone to toluol

FLAMMABLE liquids include those liquids having a flash point below 200 deg F and with vapor pressure not exceeding 40 lb psi. But most warehousemen will be concerned with Class I and Class II varieties.

Class I includes those liquids with flash points at or below 20 deg F. Class II deals with liquids having flash points above 20 deg F but at or below 70 deg F.

A few in Class I are acetone, benzol, collodion, ether, gasoline, methyl acetate, and naphtha. In Class II, amyl acetate, ethyl acetate, ethyl alcohol, methyl alcohol, toluol, and pyridine are a few.

The flash point is that minimum temperature in degrees Fahrenheit at which a flammable liquid will give off flammable vapor as determined by appropriate test procedure and apparatus. Here are some storage hints to remember.

* Inside stationary tanks are not substitutes for underground or outside above-ground storage when same can be installed. They are used to reduce hazards of storing and handling barrels, drums, etc.

* Main storage of flammable liquids must be separated from other activities.

* When determining allowable storage area, consider floor loads and arrangement of storage.

* Flammable liquids are safe when confined in a closed container. Hazard can occur when leaks or spills appear from punctures. Degree of danger determined by flash point and range of air mixtures within which vapors are flammable and explosive.

* If warehouse is of wood frame construction and more than one story high, inside storage cannot be viewed favorably.

* Drums should not be stored outside on building platforms or between buildings, or in locations adjacent so that in case of fire they may cause it to spread from building to building.

* Containers require careful consideration. If they are used in interstate commerce, they will be constructed in accordance with ICC rules. But if they are not for interstate commerce their manufacturers and users are not bound by federal regulation, perhaps not even state or local laws. The containers may be light and flimsy and vulnerable to rupture upon forcible contact or by falling any distance. They may have soldered joints with solder of low melting point making ruptures at relatively low temperatures.

* Paints, lacquers, solvents, and similar flammable liquids in quart, gallon, and five gallon sealed containers cannot be considered as presenting any great hazard. They can be stored close to other materials in moderate amounts.

* Ventilation should be provided for all rooms, buildings, or enclosures in which flammable liquids in Classes I and II are dispensed or pumped. Ventilation may be provided by adequate openings in outside walls at floor level unobstructed except by louvers or coarse screens. Where natural ventilation is impracticable, mechanical ventilation should be provided.

* Rooms storing flammable liquids or in which flammable liquids are handled by pumps should have exits arranged to prevent occupants being trapped during a fire.

* Storage areas should be heated by means not constituting a source of ignition, such as steam or hot water. Rooms containing heating appliances involving sources of ignition should be located and arranged to prevent entry of flammable vapors.

* Wherever flammable liquids are stored in containers, provision should be made and maintained for the detection of leakage. Leaking containers should be removed from storage until their contents is transferred to tight containers.

* Access should be provided by unobstructed aisles so first-aid and fire-control apparatus can be brought to any part of the liquid store.

With Class I and II liquids, several types of atmospheres are hazardous. With Class I liquids be careful of atmospheres containing:

Acetylene, hydrogen, ethyl ether vapor, gasoline, petroleum, naphtha, alcohol, acetone, lacquer solvent vapors, natural gas.

With Class II inflammable liquids be careful of atmospheres containing:

Metal dust, carbon black coal or coke dust, grain dusts.

A new freight car interior washing system that speedily flushes out dirt contaminents and even sticky goo that has trapped pigeons is being put into service by the New Haven Railroad in a program designed to increase its freight business by offering cleaner box cars to shippers.

Seaboard & Western Proposes Rate Reduction Up to 70%

Seaboard and Western Airlines, Inc., has proposed a reduction in general cargo freight rates. Volume shipping rates could be cut by as much as 70 per cent.

The new rates, proposed to the International Air Transport Association meeting in Paris, would take effect in the 2200 to 5000 lb weight bracket and above. For example, the rate in this bracket is now 48.7 cents per ton-mile. The new rate would be 46 cents. On shipment of 65,000 lb and over, the present rate is 48.7 cents. The proposed rate is 14.5 cents.

This reduced rate structure is made possible by the use of the CL-44 airplane, according to airline President Richard M. Jackson. These turbine-powered airfreighters are the largest commercial cargo aircraft ever built, he said.

Seaboard & Western has five on order. Scheduled service will start in July. The CL-44 will carry 65,000 lb nonstop across the Atlantic. It will cruise at more than 400 mph. Its hinged, swing tail offers a large opening of about 75 sq ft for loading.

Glossary of Terms In the Moving Industry

Planning a move? Here are some of the terms of the industry. A review of these now will tell you what to expect when you call your warehouseman and the action to take before the van arrives

HOUSEHOLD goods moving is a service available from several sources. These are public household goods warehouses, multi-purpose public warehouse, long distance van lines, and local movers.

Local movers, operating without warehouses, usually are not in the business of moving more than a few miles within one metropolitan area. They provide a transportation service with a minimum of "extras."

Household goods and multi-purpose warehouses are prepared to provide a wide variety of services, including transcontinental moving through a long distance van line. Local warehouses serve as agents in arranging long-hauls.

For the guidance of companies involved in personnel moves for the first time, DISTRIBUTION AGE has prepared this glossary of terms from the household goods warehouse industry. It consists of three parts—services, paperwork, rates. This is followed by a list of organizations in the industry. These groups will supply you with additional information on the services of the industry.

Regular Services

Household Goods Moving—This is the basic service of the industry. Consisting of loading, transporting, and unloading household goods, it can be purchased as a separate service or with various combinations of the extras listed below.

Commercial and Industrial Moving—The moving of machinery or office equipment when a company moves to a new plant. Selection of the "right" mover can minimize down time for production.

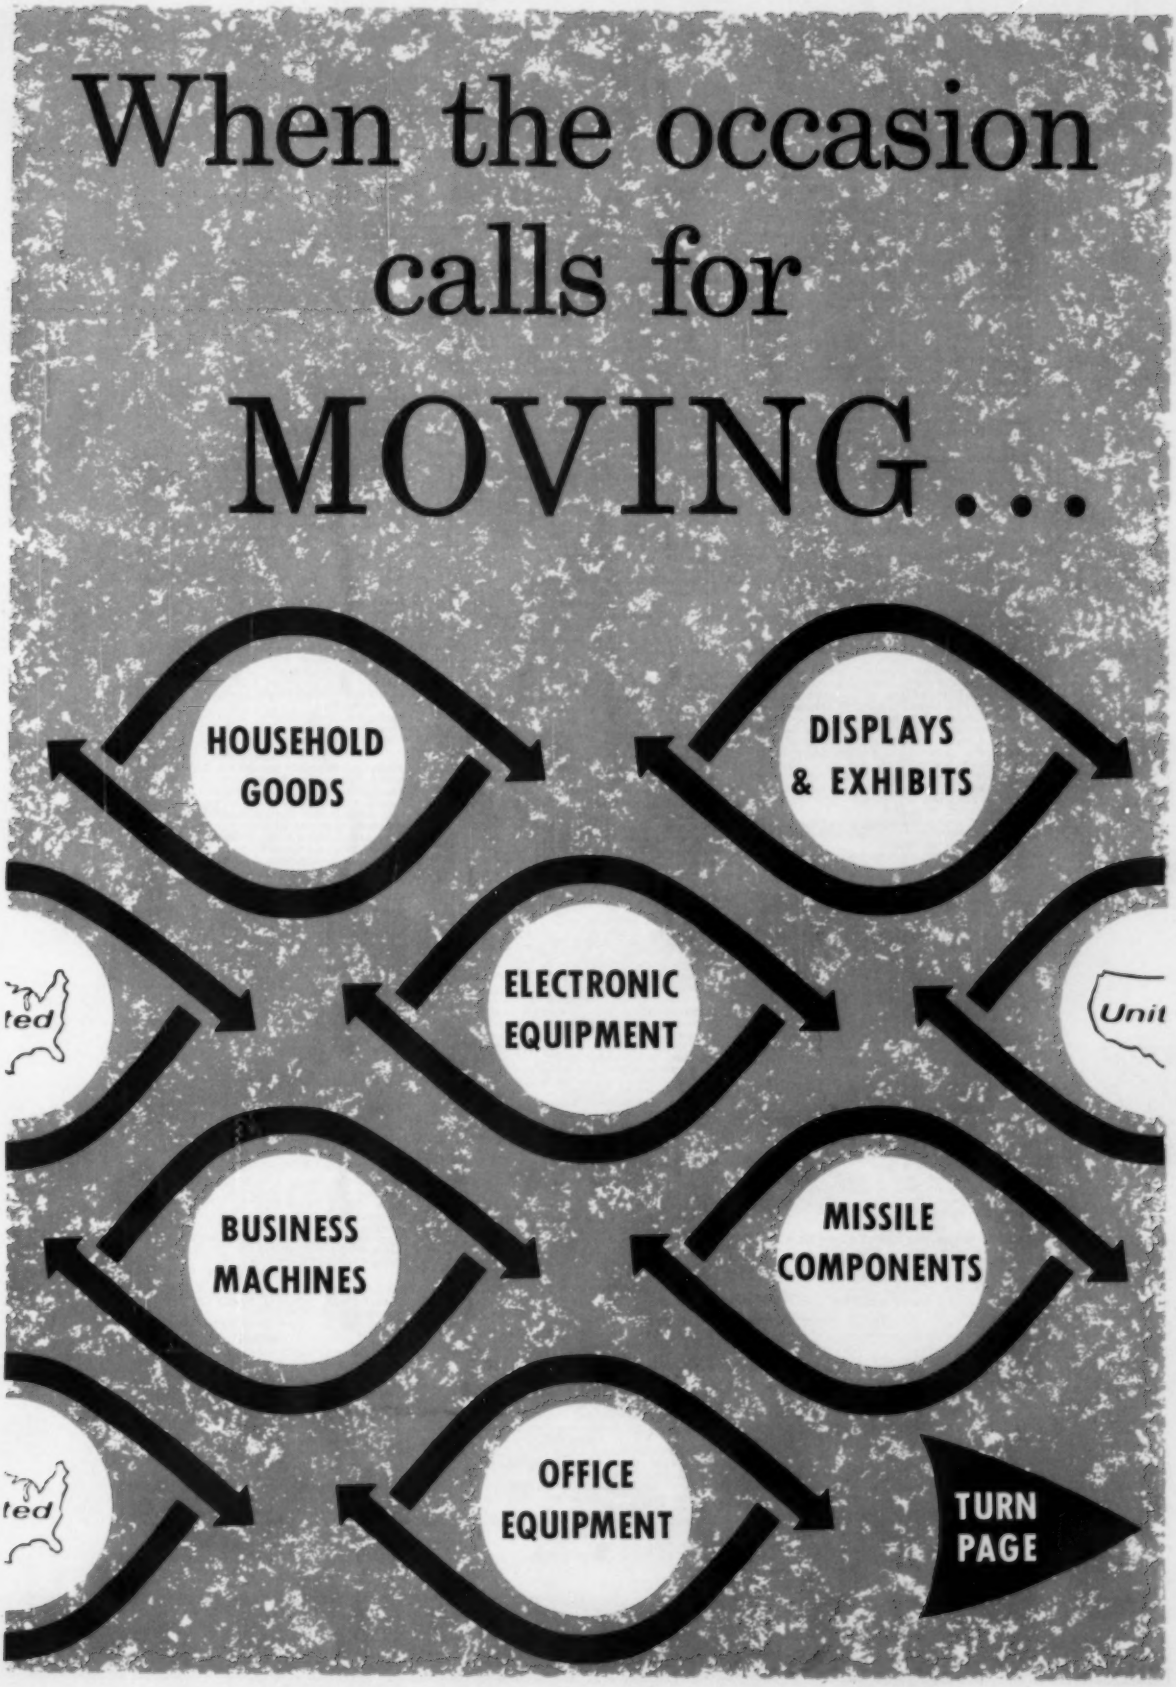

Storage—The holding in a public warehouse of personal property until the owner is ready to use it. Although a shipper does not expect to use this service, it is well to consider the quality and cost of storage services in planning a move. Unforeseen causes may make this service necessary.

Packing—If the mover does the packing he will charge for the service and the use of the containers. If you elect to do your own packing, you can purchase containers from the warehouse. When the warehouse packs, it uses trained personnel and the latest protective materials. There is no question of who is responsible for damage.

Before You Move

1. Ask your postman or post office for a change of address card. Fill one out for the entire family.
2. Notify the service departments of the electric and gas companies.
3. Call the telephone company. Ask for the business office.
4. Arrange for termination of service with the water company or city water department.
5. Call your fuel dealer, giving him your expected moving date.
6. Notify the newspaper office so that deliveries will be discontinued.
7. To each publisher of a magazine to which you subscribe send a change of address card. Many publishers request that you clip your name and address from the wrapper in which their publication is mailed. Changing of address should be started well in advance of the move.
8. For information on schools, churches, recreation, and amusements write to the Chamber of Commerce in the city to which you are moving.
9. Ask your physician and dentist to recommend doctors in your new home town.
10. Notify life insurance companies of your change of address.
11. Notify stores where you have charge accounts.

United Van Lines – INTERNATIONAL HEADQUARTERS, ST. LOUIS 17, MO.

Glossary of Terms . . .

Long-Distance Moving — Warehouses, as agents for van lines, are able to arrange for moves throughout the U. S. and even to points overseas. When moving overseas, it is advisable to check both land-air and land-water rates. Because of reduced crating costs, the former frequently is lower.

Special Services

Multiple Pickups—Movers will stop at more than one location to pickup parts of your shipment. However, they must charge for this service. Therefore, when possible, it is advisable to bring everything to one location.

Expedited Service—Movers will guarantee delivery of household goods on a given date for an extra charge. Unless you contract for this special service, the pickup and delivery dates agreed to by the warehouseman are not binding.

Insurance—While movers carry insurance, it covers only a part of the total value of the shipment. Reimbursement is figured on a weight basis. Therefore, the shipper usually takes out additional insurance. Full value protection is available. Do not move valuables such as jewelry in the van with the rest of your shipment. They push the value too high.

Appliances — Small appliances should be packed in containers similar to the boxes they were sold in. Major appliances should be prepared for shipment by a qualified serviceman. This is not a normal service of the warehouse.

Rigging—Of particular importance in planning an industrial move is whether or not the warehouse provides rigging service. Rigging permits the placement of heavy or bulky loads such as machery in hard-to-reach locations.

Pool Car Distribution — Many warehouses will consolidate several shipments in one rail car then dispatch it to a distant warehouse for distribution. Shipping costs are reduced in this way.

New Furniture — Many movers hold operating rights for the transportation of new furniture. This is of little interest to customers selecting a mover. The rights do not deal with recently purchased furniture. They cover furniture coming from the factory and not yet received by a consumer.

Paperwork

Order for Service—This is the form on which the warehouseman sets up a tentative schedule for the move and estimates the cost of moving. It must be signed by the shipper to authorize the move.

Bill of Lading—This is the official document for the shipment. It shows the van line, shipper, origin, destination, and charges. Of particular importance on this form are the weight of the empty van, the weight of the loaded van, and the mileage to be covered.

Inventory—This is a list of every item in the shipment. It is prepared by an employe of the mover when the van arrives. The condition of each item is given.

Rates

Local Moves—The cost of these moves usually is figured by an hourly rate determined by the number of men and size of the van. Intrastate shipments are covered by tariffs.

Long Distance Moves — These rates are controlled by the ICC. They are based on weight times miles, the weight being determined by weighing the van and its equipment before and after loading.

Household Goods Containers

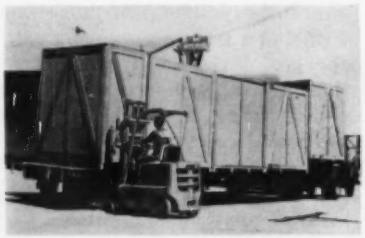

This trailer was developed to move hhg containers to and from warehouses. It shows Lyon Van Lines' system of containing many elements in sturdy unit

CONTAINERS for household goods moving and storage activities come in a variety of shapes and weights from cardboard to plywood. They are designed to enclose their contents and leave no room for damage-in-transit whether the mode of carriage be water, air, or land.

On these pages, the many types are pictured. There are modular container systems, rug storage boxes, vault-type containers in four parts for small items and bin-types for larger things. These systems bring an efficient and clean means of storage to warehouses offering accommodations for household goods.

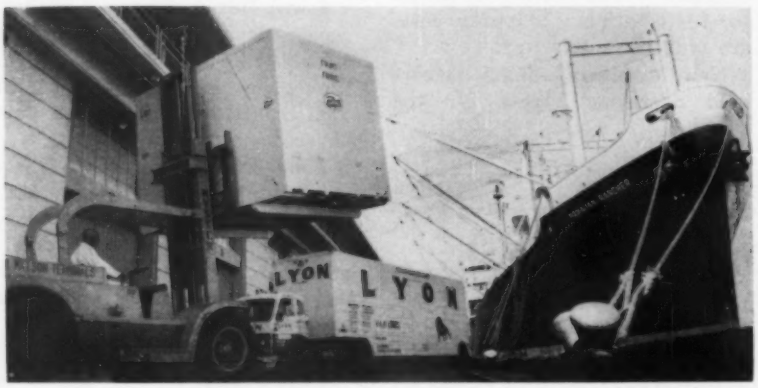

These metal containers turn a standard flatbed trailer into a long distance moving van for household goods. They reduce handling. Trailer holds 3 or 5

These containers are built to make all fork-lift truck pickups easy. The forks slide under load, require no jacks or casters. Containers rest on 40 ft bed

Lyon's Sea Van is an all-weather container built for ship transportation. It can hold about 4500 lb of household goods. Water cannot reach into contents

Pallet Vault system has paper cap to facilitate handling when empty. The container has pallet bottom, holds household goods like ones at right

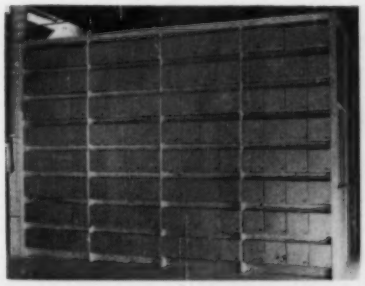

Container is used by Neptune World Wide Moving for hhg shipments. Pictured here, the container contents emerge dry after simulated rough sea weather

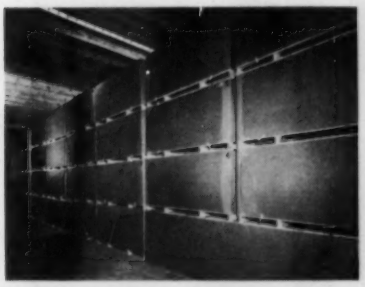

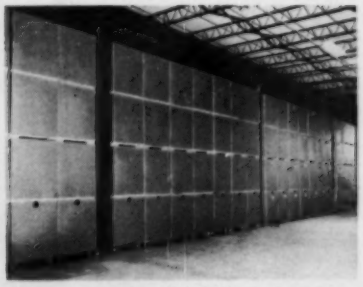

Special racks can hold a variety of articles in and out of containers. Greyhound Van Lines, not shown, has a container system called Private-Pak. Furniture and other articles are placed in the containers, padded, sealed

Individual rug storage boxes are dust-free and readily accessible for storage or removal and periodic vermin treatment. Box numbers facilitate inventory

Partial view of couch and upholstered chair boxes in warehouse household goods section. They guard against mold and other disfigurement hazards

Casters on these storage vaults allow easy handling at moving site without mechanized equipment. Vaults hold a smaller size item than other boxes

Four different sizes of containers designed to hold a variety of shipments. All have provision for fork lift entry at bottom. These are used in overseas cargo work by Lyons Van Lines and are constructed of modular plywood

Household Goods Containers . . .

Containers like this one are used mainly where water and land shipping make up the transportation picture—also where cargo moves via rail from ship

View of portion of household goods section showing use of vault storage system stacked two high. Klimp fasteners are used on one side of a box

Auto-Stack container is assembled at moving site. Its panels are held fast by metal plates. Component frames can be seen at rear of assembled box

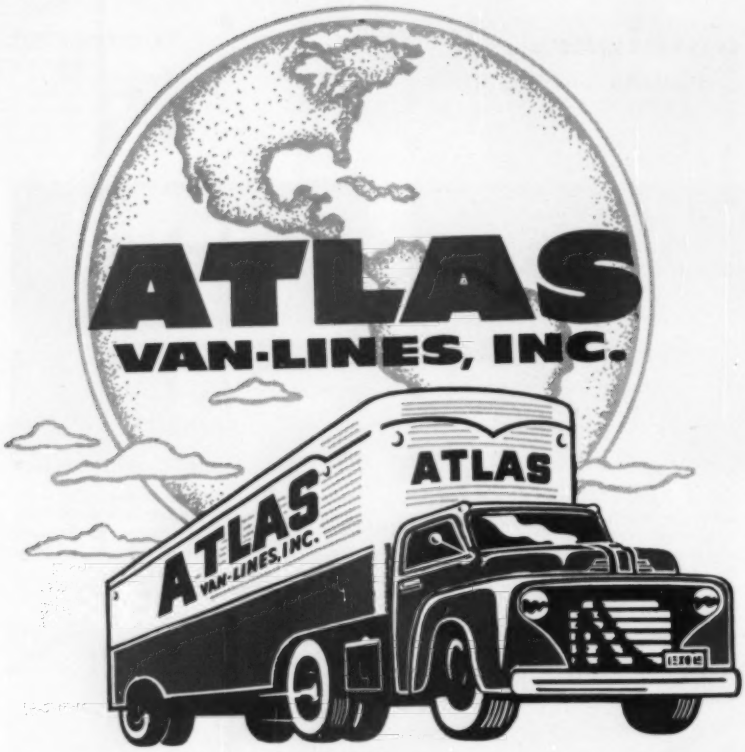

Another angle on packages out of pieces. Big panels are put together by one man. Modular panel system saves storage space. North American Aviation's Klimp fasteners permit easy packing and closing. Disassembly is quick Containers are brought by fork-lift trucks right up to loading docks to receive material going into storage.

SOMETHING NEW IN RAILROADING...

"CREATIVE CREWS"

of the Milwaukee Road

One man can transfer the van from trailer to flat car in 4 minutes. First in the Midwest and Northwest with Flexi-Van, the improved door-to-door rail-highway service.

America's resourceful railroad

They come up with resourceful answers to shippers' problems—improving on "Piggy-Back"

An idea can be the difference between new business and no business!

The Milwaukee Road's Creative Crews, working with the basic idea of piggy-back transportation, have come up with several innovations in service to shippers. These innovations have built new business not only for the railroad but for its customers.

In January, 1960, the Milwaukee Road was the first railroad in the country to initiate a truck-rail-truck transport plan for the transcontinental piggy-backing of automobiles—reducing the transit time from Detroit to Spokane, Wash., by an average of 5 days over conventional highway delivery.

The Milwaukee Road's Flexi-Van fleet has expanded four times in size in two years. And it was the first Flexi-Van service in the industry to put 85-foot flatcars into service, carrying two 40-foot vans each, with 300 to 600 cubic feet of extra loading space.

Other innovations include pioneering in the delivery of mail by Flexi-Van, the development of special refrigerated vans for perishables, and a new sea-going van for "one-container delivery" overseas.

It is the high value placed on ideas, and the skill employed in carrying them out, that make our Creative Crews so valuable to shippers. This fresh, uninhibited, creative concept maintains the Milwaukee Road's reputation as America's resourceful railroad. The railroad industry, as well as our customers, benefits by it every day!

Electric Trucks REQUIRE LESS MAINTENANCE

Simpler construction and fewer moving parts, combined with the vibrationless, rotary motion of the electric motors, make minimum repair and replacement on battery-powered electric trucks self-evident.

Add less maintenance to a convincing list of other benefits—lower operating costs, maneuverability, clean, quiet and safe operation—and you can easily see the main reason why users indicate a preference for battery-powered electric trucks for modern, efficient materials-handling jobs of all types.

Electric truck users generally agree on one other point, too—Gould Batteries for longer life. With the new Silconic Plate, Gould Batteries offer up to 25% longer life.

Join the list of users who prefer this ideal combination of electric trucks and Gould Batteries. For more information, write or call your local Gould representative. Ask for booklet "Why We Use Battery-Electric Industrial Trucks." Gould-National Batteries, Inc., Trenton 7, N. J. Robert F. Moody Elected President, Bert E. Phillips New VP, Material Handling Institute

At the recent Annual Meeting of the Material Handling Institute, Inc., Robert F. Moody was elected president. He is general sales manager of Hyster Co.

Bert E. Phillips is the new first vice president. He is with the Industrial Truck Division of Clark Equipment Co. as vice president and general manager. Phillips also is chairman of the Institute's show committee. Norman A. Price is second vice president of the Institute and executive vice president of The Colson Corp.

Moody, in accepting his election as president, said that there is a growing awareness among manufacturers that even a dramatic upswing in the economy would not relieve pressure on profit margins. "Everyday more companies conclude that the only way out of the squeeze on profits lies in reducing the cost of operations," he said.

"As a result, capital spending in 1961 is bound to increase regardless of what happens to the economy as a whole. And since materials handling represents 25 per cent of the cost put into most products without adding to their value, 1961 is sure to be a good year for the industry."

Gill of ATA Predicts Continued Growth for Interstate Trucking

The president of the American Trucking Associations, Inc., in his year-end statement on the industry, said that the outlook for 1961 is one of continued growth.

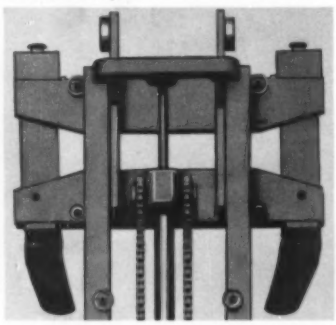

But, Gill said, there will be some correction in the disparity between gross and net for the for-hire carriers. Of 1960, he expects gross operating revenues to be $7,450,000,000. It is the second successive year that "total volume, the underlying measure of economic value of truck service to the nation, has edged ahead to a new peak," he said.

Gill also said that truck registrations have reached an estimated 11½ million compared with 8.3 million 10 years ago.

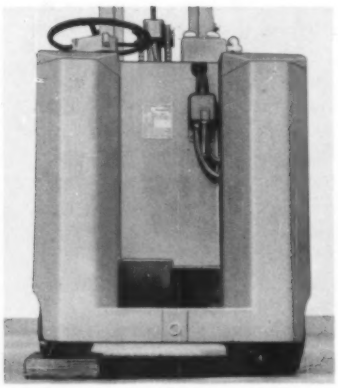

Compact K-47 Yale Electrics work in narrow spaces and low headroom areas

Easy battery change—Steering wheel unit pivots on steer shaft to permit hinged battery cover to be raised and detachable side plates to be removed for top or side replacement of battery.

Choice of three masts—Simplex (Yale standard), Duplex and Triplex. K-47 fork carriage permits easy installation of standard hydraulic attachments for specialized requirements.

Stability over uneven surfaces—Pivoted steering axle provides articulation to insure proper contact of all four wheels at all times.

• High lifting speeds • Shortest length for narrow aisle operation • I-beam mast construction provides high rigidity under all load conditions • Capacities 2,000 to 3,000 lbs.

To cut costs in car loading, dock handling and warehousing, consider Yale Electric K-47 Trucks. With fewer wearing parts, electric power reduces maintenance and down-time costs. The trucks are fast, safe, silent. Stand-up end control with low 7-inch step simplifies operator's on-and-off movements. A DISTRIBUTION AGE SURVEY

Refrigerated Warehouses Plan for Expansion

PUBLIC warehousemen seem to be alert to changing demands for product storage and distribution services. Not only do they maintain adequate facilities now, they also anticipate future needs.

These are conclusions obtained from DISTRIBUTION AGE's current survey of that industry. The survey covers that segment of warehousemen who now serve, or are preparing to serve, industries that require refrigerated storage for their products. It also includes those having cooler and controlled humidity facilities, with or without refrigerated space.

The number of warehouse operators reporting totals 595. This provides a sampling of about 15 per cent of the entire industry.

Not all warehouses reporting are solely in the refrigerated warehouse business. The accompanying table shows that of those surveyed, only 18.7 per cent have refrigerated space. This figures out to about one of five—a better than average representation. However, only 46.8 per cent of the cold storage warehousemen devote all of their space to this type of service. The remainder also have space for general merchandise, household goods, or both. These added facilities may be in the same or separate buildings.

Controlled temperature (cooler space) and humidity facilities also are spread over all three types of warehouse operations. Not all have both.

Of special interest are the last two columns of this table. They show that the public warehouse industry is preparing now to meet future needs for cold storage.

The last column shows that there will be some newcomers in this field. Of those warehouse operators that do not have refrigerated service now, over five per cent are planning—or in the process of building—low temperature storage quarters. In some cases, these will be additions to present structures; in others, separate buildings.

The next to the last column tells an equally impressive story. Of those warehouse operators who now offer refrigerated service, 32.4 per cent plan—or have started —to expand. Because of their close contact with cold storage users, this fact is noteworthy. It seems to imply that the demand for refrigerated service will increase in the near future.

These figures become more significant when compared to 1960 data. For example, last year cold storage space occupancy of all public warehouses ran between 85 and 90 per cent. It seems that the balance is not considered a safe cushion for the coming year. This augurs well for cold storage and the industries it serves. ●

A PROGRESS REPORT

Many States to Adopt AFDOUS Codes in 1961

Food consuming states expected to set top temperature for frozen foods at zero. Food producing states may permit temperatures as high as 10 deg during transport

THE AFDOUS code now is a fact and within 12 months will become a real serious problem to frozen food transporters.

The Association of Food & Drug Officials of the U.S. in June recommended a year's delay in strict enforcement, realizing that code requirements are drastic and could drive some transportation companies out of business.

John B. Hulse, managing director of the Truck-Trailer Manufacturers Association, Inc., expects a strong drive by most states to adopt the code in 1961. Many will pass it on the first try, he predicts. Others will modify it—food consuming states probably will takes the strict O-deg-F requirement. Food producing states are expected to settle for 10-deg minimums or higher.

To date, Massachusetts and Florida have accepted codes with temperature requirements for frozen foods. Massachusetts has the strict version. Florida will allow temperatures as high as 20 deg.

Under the Massachusetts law, shipments that arrive at temperatures above zero may be refrozen. However, they must be held for state inspection and later relabeled if the product is downgraded by the inspector. Detailed records of all such shipments must be kept by the owner of the goods.

The amount of deterioration will determine whether the load will be accepted as Grade A, downgraded, or destroyed.

The American Trucking Associations, Inc., has undertaken an educational program on loading and shipping for its members. It is developing a film to help them improve line-haul temperatures.

In the long run, adoption of the code will mean many transporters will have to buy new equipment. Much of the present equipment will be used for hauling commodities such as meats which do not require extremely low temperatures. Some equipment may be rebuilt.

Similar equipment problems are being tackled by the railroads. For all forms of common carriage, these investments in new equipment will probably reflect in higher rates for shipping frozen products eventually. Shippers will also find labor costs on loading and unloading higher as new devices are used to maintain low temperatures in the car and freezer.

Several manufacturers are developing techniques to match the AFDOUS code. DuPont has reported on a new "frothing" method of insulating. Rigid foam is used rather than foaming the insulation in place. This permits the entire cavity to be foamed in one pass. Extensive jigging is eliminated. There is no need to build up pressure which bulges the side of the van or produces non-uniform bubbles. It's a rigid urethane foam.

The Department of Agriculture now has the U.S. Bureau of Standards running tests on air distribution in loads. The attempt is to envelope an entire load in a covering of cold air. This may be particularly useful in local delivery where lighter equipment is used and doors are opened frequently.

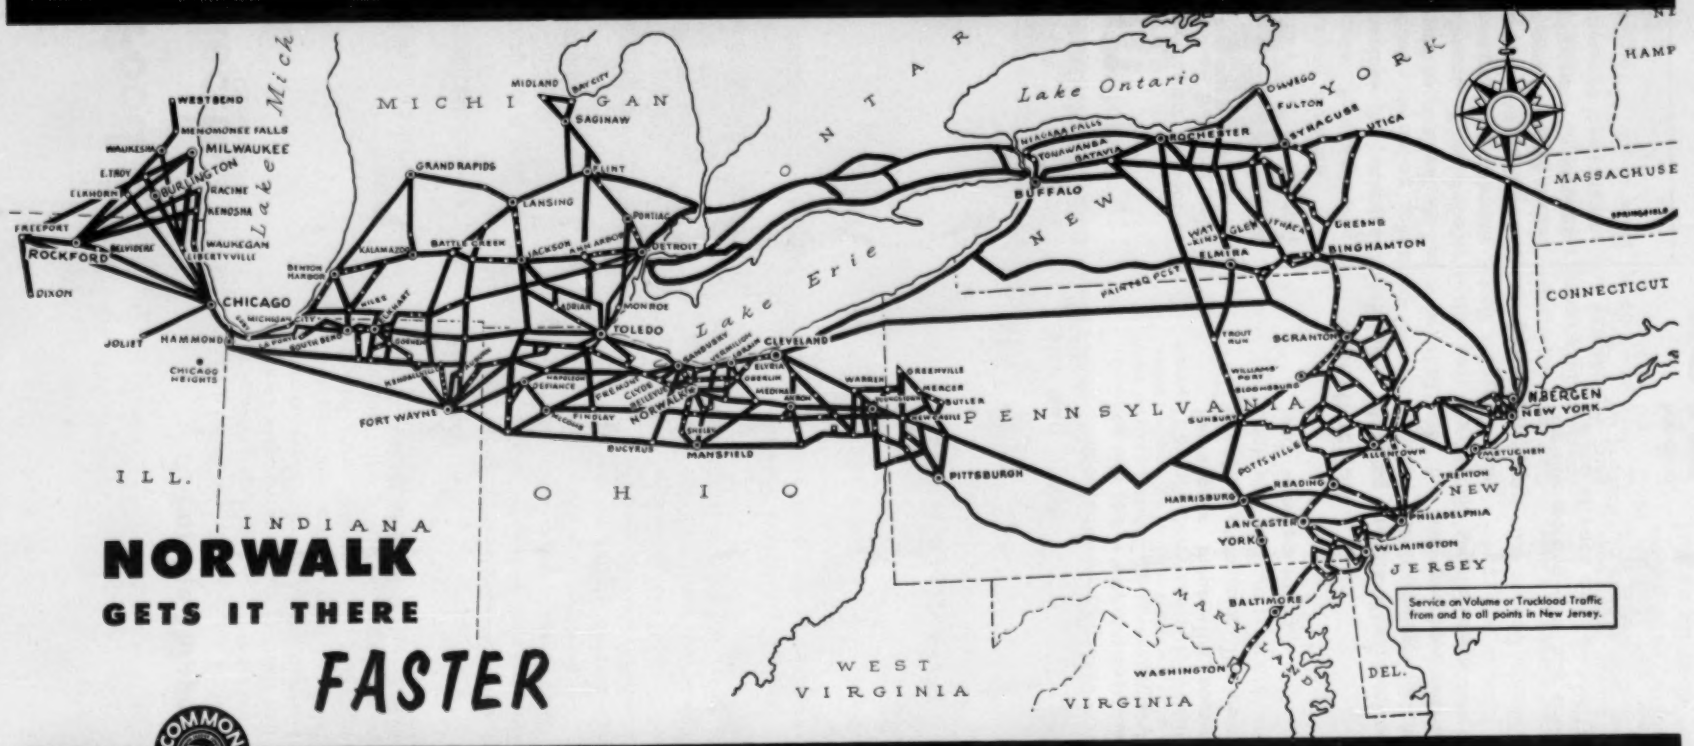

The Truck Body and Equipment Association now is setting up with the Bureau of Standards in cooperation with the Department of Agriculture a research program on truck bodies. This study will deal particularly with problems of local delivery. The program has been approved, but is not yet underway. ●

Effect of Temperature on Frozen Food Quality

This table shows periods of time at various temperatures that are approximately equivalent in their effect on the quality of frozen foods. For example, strawberries stored at 30 deg F undergo as great a change in quality in three days as they do when stored at 0 deg F for one year. This chart was published by the University of Massachusetts in a booklet entitled "Handling Frozen Foods —A Guide for Distributors." Single copies of the complete report are available free from the University.

Check List For Frozen Food Package Selection

The frozen foods industry is working on a solution to a giant packaging problem. Many protective containers now in use were developed when food freezing was a small business. Shipments were small. Today frozen foods move in quantities that require mechanical handling and stacking. New demands are being made on protective packages. At a recent meeting of The Refrigeration Research Foundation, speakers listed these points to consider in the packaging of frozen food products

How A Warehouseman Can Preserve Container

1. Use racks in storage area.
2. Add bracing to pallets or corners to loads so that pressure on the containers from the pallet above is reduced or eliminated.
3. Keep a close control of temperatures. Changes in humidity and temperature produce moisture which breaks down packaging materials.
4. Use shorter defrosting cycle. Poor defrosting practices can drastically weaken the packages. Large deposits of water from defrosting coils on the packages also should be avoided.
5. Cover packages not in freezer. When pulling frozen products out of storage, the warehouseman should lay a suitable covering over them. This will prevent moisture condensation.
6. Use protective curtains to prevent temperature loss in trailers and freezers during loading operations.

For the Shipper

Listed below are the features a shipper should look for in selecting a container for frozen foods. Changes such as new waterproofing methods and new adhesives occur so rapidly in the packaging field that many of the suggestions may become out-of-date by the time of publication. Therefore, this list should be used as a guide of the points to investigate carefully, not as an endorsement of a particular packaging method.

Material . . .

Moisture resistance—Moisture, resulting from condensation when temperatures vary inside and outside of the container, cause deterioration in many packaging materials.

No wax on outside surfaces—Slippery surfaces on containers increase damage when containers are handled by fork truck. Therefore, the storage operation must be slowed down or the number of cartons per pallet reduced. Costs rise.

Sufficient insulation—Container should keep the product frozen during vehicle loading and delivery at the retail outlet.

Stapled bottom—Glues which may be affected by moisture should be avoided in setting up boxes.

Odor protection—Shellfish can pick up odors from volatiles in packages. At the same time they transfer odors to other foods.

Size and Shape . . .

Standardization—Companies should standardize with one or two container sizes.

Factors to consider: Retailer's freezer size, vehicle dimensions, and pallet sizes to be used.

Rectangular shape—The base of containers should be rectangular. This permits more efficient use of storage space and interlocking loads when palletizing.

Construction . . .

Stacking strength—The container should have sufficient built-in strength for stacking. Unlike cans, the inner packages contribute little support to the total package.

Marking . . .

Four-side marking—The four sides and possibly the top of each container should be identified by product and code number for fast recognition. Color markings help speed warehouse handling.

BUSY ALL WEEK, Mack B and H Models of H. & S., Inc., Jacksonville, Fla., are washed and checked on weekends. This fleet makes as many as ten trips daily to super markets throughout southeastern states. Macks' freedom from downtime is one key reason why H. & S. is almost exclusively Mack equipped.

HOME ONLY ON WEEKENDS

So remarkably free from downtime are the 20 Macks of H. & S., Inc., that you'll only see them at home when the week's work is done. The week's work? Hauling 68,000-lb. GCW loads of refrigerated groceries to the Florida, Georgia and South Carolina super markets of a large national food chain.

In this kind of hauling, where uninterrupted delivery is all-important, H. & S.'s Macks not only stay on the job, but the Thermodyne® diesel engines that power them return a steady seven miles per gallon of fuel day after day at 50 mile-per-hour road speeds.

"With Macks, we've had the fewest number of road calls we've ever experienced," says Mr. Paul E. Holstun, Executive Vice President. "Taking everything into consideration—freedom from downtime, fuel economy, road performance, dependability and over-all cost of operation—I do not know of any equipment that can match Macks."

You'll be just as high in your praise of Mack performance and dependability once you see what they can do in your operation.

A PROGRESS REPORT

The Role of Nitrogen As a Cooling Agent

A RECENT test of a refrigeration system for maintaining low temperatures in delivery trucks by controlled spraying of liquid nitrogen opens a new realm for frozen foods delivery.

The liquid nitrogen is sprayed onto a load of frozen food at a temperature of 320 deg below zero. The test included delivery runs from wholesale warehouses to several retail stores during five days. Thermocouples were placed among the packages and throughout the truck to get temperature readings at intervals during the runs.

No Precooling

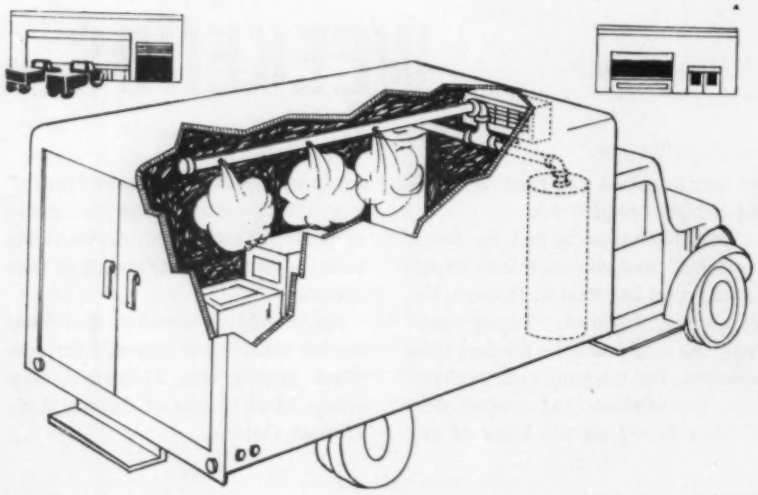

The system can be installed in any truck. It eliminates precooling time when compared with conventional systems by replacing warm air in the truck with cold and dry nitrogen instead of gradually cooling the air.

Until the test was made by the Department of Agriculture in cooperation with Plantation Frozen Foods, Ulita, Fla., and Union Carbide Corp., the Department had not conducted or observed any test of the liquid nitrogen system applied to refrigerated transportation. Since this use of nitrogen is so new, there is much to be learned about its application and efficiencies under varying conditions.

During the tests, set up on an eight-hour basis, the mechanical refrigeration system was used during the night after the truck was loaded and the liquid nitrogen system was used from the time the truck left the warehouse in the morning. Equipment which makes up the system consists of two cylinders of liquid nitrogen, one length of copper tubing, the control system, and wiring and fittings.

The cylinders are similar to thermos bottles except they are of metal approximately 5-ft high and 20-in. in diameter, each with a capacity of 110 liters or about 29 gal. A sight gage on top of each cylinder lets the driver see the amount of liquid left in the container.

Liquid nitrogen is sprayed onto the cargo from a single spray pipe. It is attached to the ceiling of the truck. Mounted on the center line, the pipe runs the length of the truck interior. There are drilled holes 5/64-in. in diameter in the ½-in. copper tubing spaced at 1-ft intervals. Even numbered holes spray to one side of the truck and odd numbered holes spray to the other side. The spray leaves the pipe at an angle of about 30 deg below the horizontal.

Solenoid Value

The end of the pipe near the doors is sealed with a plug. A tee fitting at the other end connects the pipe to the cylinders. In between the fitting and each cylinder there is a valve operated by a solenoid, part of the control system. Operation is controlled by a 12-volt electrical system directly connected to the truck's electrical system. Power requirements of the control are so small that during the test no effect was noted on the electrical system.

A bridge circuit is the heart of the control system. One leg of the bridge circuit is a thermistor whose resistance varies with its temperature. The thermistor is the temperature sensing element. It is mounted in the truck. Circuit components are chosen so that when the temperature in the truck rises above the desired level, a current flows in the circuit and operates a relay.

This sends a current through the solenoids on the two valves, opening the valves and permitting liquid nitrogen to flow from the cylinders and into the spray pipe.

When the temperature drops to the desired level, the resistance of the thermistor changes and no current flows in the bridge circuit. This causes the relay to open, which closes the valves by cutting off the current flow to the sole-noids. The sensing element is mounted on the inner wall of the truck near the ceiling. It is surrounded by a perforated brass plate to protect it from shifting cargo and still allow free circulation of air over it.

Except for the sensing element, the control system was mounted in a box approximately 10-in. long, 5-in. wide, and 3-in. deep, and placed in the cab of the truck. A switch allows the system to be turned on and off. For the test, a galvanometer calibrated in degrees Fahrenheit was mounted on the box. The thermometer also used a thermistor as a sensing device.

The liquid nitrogen system in the test truck was not a production model. The production model has a switch which turns the system completely off when the door is opened. During test runs, the system had to be turned off manually.

And during the test, at the end of each delivery run, the empty or partly empty cylinders had to be removed from the truck and replaced with full ones. In the production model, one large cylinder is mounted underneath the truck body and refilled as necessary from a storage tank at the plant.

The liquid nitrogen system functions in a manner which enables it to provide a low air temperature in the truck in a small fraction of the time required by the conventional system. The liquid nitrogen sprayed into the truck flashes into a gas almost instantly. Since 1 cu ft of liquid nitrogen flashes into about 700 cu ft of gas, the nitrogen sprayed into the truck begins to force the warm air out of the truck through openings.

This system does not so much cool the air in the truck as it replaces the air in the truck with cold and dry nitrogen. The nitrogen does not force the atmosphere from the truck in the manner that a piston in a gasoline engine displaces the exhaust gases from a cylinder. As soon as the system is turned on the nitrogen begins to mix with the truck's atmosphere.

As a result the gases leaving the truck consist of less and less air and more nitrogen. The system does force a sizeable part of the warm air from the truck, replacing it with cold nitrogen.

Second Test Run

The chart included here concerns the second test run. It was a long one. The last delivery was made about 16 hours after the truck left the warehouse. Since this nitrogen system was designed for an 8-hour run, the conventional refrigeration system previously installed in the truck was used to complete the run.

To get as much information as possible about the new system, engineers attempted to extend operation of the system by turning it off for moderate periods of time. They observed the temperature of the cargo at each delivery stop.

Expansion

The liquid nitrogen with its pipe extending the length of the truck insures a more even distribution of the cooling medium, both liquid and gaseous nitrogen with a considerable reduction in the number of hot spots. Liquid nitrogen expands about 700 times after flashing into a gas, so that if goods were packed to the ceiling, the gas would be forced into some narrow spaces between cases of frozen food. And while the test model has one spray pipe, the production model provides a wider distribution of the nitrogen through simple spray pipe installation.

Often during the test, a delivery required some thermocouples to be removed from cases of food to be delivered. If the cases were at a temperature above or below the average cargo temperature, then the average temperature of the remaining cargo was changed. In a test of this nature only a limited number of temperature measuring devices can be used. Consequently, the average cargo temperatures shown for run No. 2 may be in error to a small degree.

In some instances a truckload of frozen foods may have a range of temperatures because part of the cargo is allowed to sit on the loading dock longer than other parts. For the most part, the statistics show the effectiveness of liquid nitrogen in a fair light.

There seems to be no danger to the truck driver from the nitrogen. If the wind should slam the door shut and trap the driver inside with the cargo, he could turn off the system at the safety switch just inside the door before any liquid nitrogen could be sprayed into the truck.

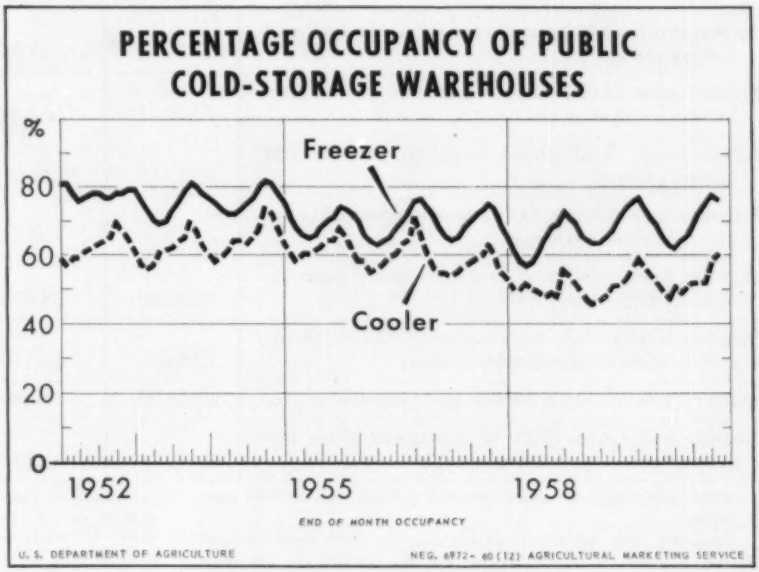

Because the use of nitrogen as a refrigeration medium in moving vehicles is a new development, exact cost of its use in operation has not been completely compiled. The cost of installing the system would be low, but the cost of the nitrogen might be prohibitive if used for only a few trucks.

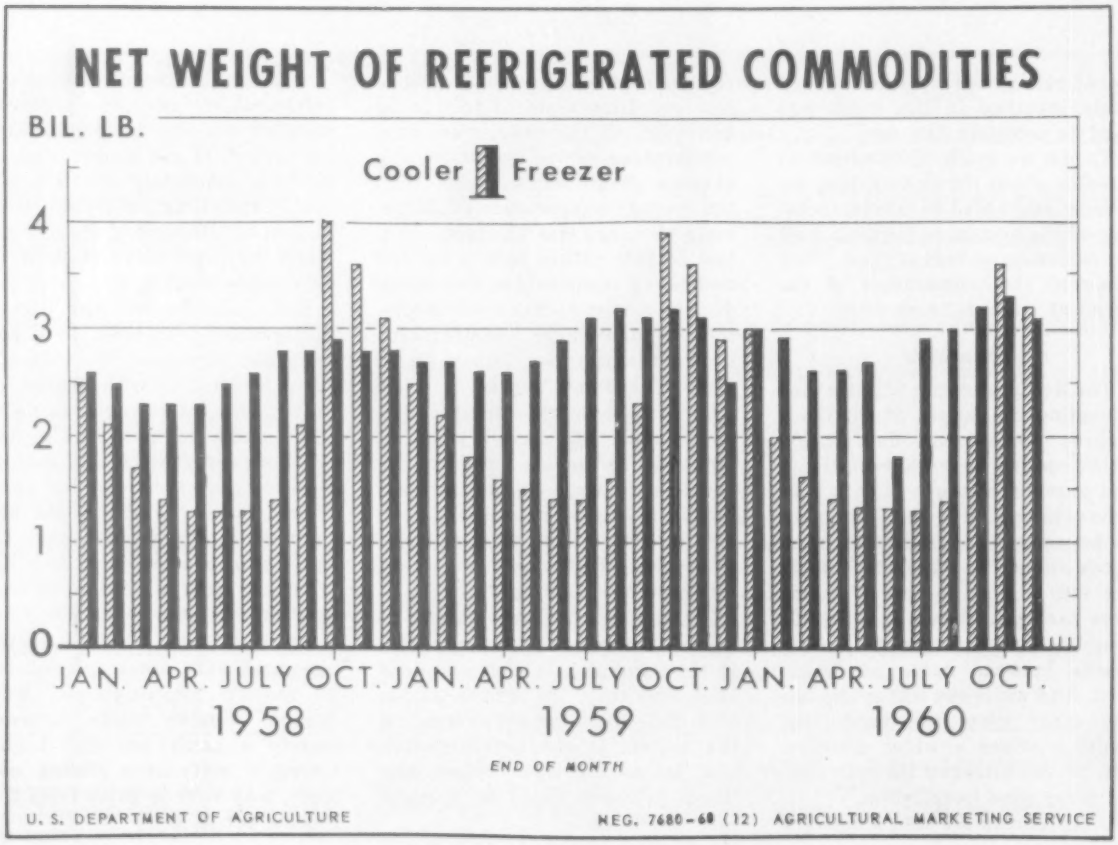

But since the cost per liter of nitrogen drops as the rate of consumption increases, the unit cost for a larger fleet with greater requirements for nitrogen could be low enough to make the system economically feasible. It may be possible that a number of small operators in one city could pool their requirements and have the liquid nitrogen delivered to a distribution point to be used by each operator's trucks.

The cost of the nitrogen system compared with other systems can be roughly approximated. Solid carbon dioxide costs approximately 4 cents per lb. Liquid nitrogen, sold on a sliding cost scale, may vary in price from 2 to 8 cents per lb. ●

A Report on Refrigerated Storage

These charts, summarizing cooler and freezer storage in the U. S., are prepared by the Agricultural Marketing Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture. With the other AMS charts on the pages which follow they give a view of the industry on December 1, 1960.

Pole Warehouse Has Salt

Salt and more salt is what fills this pole warehouse. But it is for highways, not hamburgers. Cayuga Rock Salt Co., Myers, N. Y., built the warehouse at its mine site on the shores of Lake Cayuga. It will provide long-life shelter for highway salt during the winter season. Foundations are not costly here, the poles support the structure

HHG Wardrobe Frame

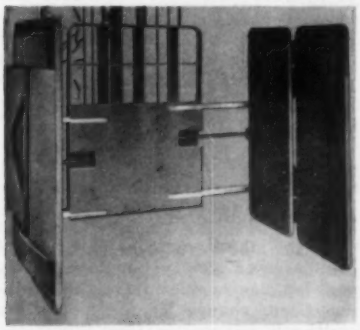

Lawrence Piller, Inc., is introducing a collapsible wardrobe frame which fits into wardrobe cartons. The removable steel frame provides structural strength. Carton walls need not provide support. Collapsed, the frame is 2½ in. wide. No tools or nails, bolts are required. Stacking loaded cartons is safer. For all the facts on this mover aid, write to the editor. Ask for C79.

Space Saving Clamps

Newly designed carton clamps create new space-saving possibilities for warehouses using fork trucks. Extra thin arms permit unit loads to be stacked closer together. The clamps feature double articulating pads for handling large cartons; single articulating pads for small cartons. Either can be mounted on any make or model lift truck up to 8000-lb capacity. Little Giant Products, Inc., is the manufacturer.

For complete information on these carton clamps write to the editor. Ask for C17.

Aluminum Dockboard

Jarke Manufacturing Co. has announced a new series of seven aluminum dockboards. Axle load capacities range from 2500 to 5000 lb. Surfaces have non-slip safety treads for positive traction. Beveled edges at both ends permit truck wheels to roll onto the board easily. A bend in the board keeps edges of the plate flush during loading.

For details write to the editor. Ask for C15.

Retractable Tractor Axle

A retractable axle that converts single axle tractors into tandems was placed on the market recently. It is made by Clement-Braswell, Inc. Designed to fit on any standard single axle tractor, it can be installed in a few hours by regular shop personnel. Truck operators can increase single axle tractors to tandem capacities at a fraction of the cost of buying new units. For additional savings, an air-lift cylinder has been incorporated in the unit to retract the axle when carrying light loads or making an empty return run. The axle can be regulated to carry from 5000 to 25,000 lb.

Get details on this boost to fleet efficiency by writing to the editor. Ask for item C20.

Electric Reefer Drive

A simple, highly dependable electric truck-refrigeration drive system has been introduced by Republic Electric & Development Co. The manufacturer reports that it weighs 400 lb less than comparable gas or propane engine drives. The system uses a control unit to convert variable frequency AC power from an alternator, driven by the tractor engine, into constant voltage DC power for the compressor drive motor. No fuel is required. A thermostat in the van turns on the compressor drive only when required. The drive is effective from idler to full driving speed of the tractor. The system is readily adaptable to piggyback rail operations.

For complete information write to the editor on your company's letterhead. Ask for C29.

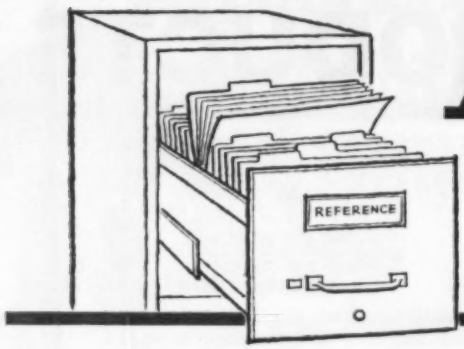

Single-Axle Power Divider

A single-axle power divider for four-wheel trucks has been developed by Mack Trucks, Inc. It insures positive traction under adverse conditions. Under normal operating conditions, it functions as a true differential. When traction is lost at one wheel, spinning is prevented by a transfer of torque to the wheel retaining traction, preventing stalling. This action is fully automatic.

Fleet operators can get details by writing to the editor. Ask for C42.

TRANSPORTATION

If carrier fails to collect c.o.d. charges on shipment what does shipper collect?

A higher court has held that the carrier is liable to the shipper for the full C.O.D. charges.

For example, in H—— T—— Co. v. R—— E—— O—— Co., 325 S. W. (2d) 826, the testimony showed that the O—— Co. in San Antonio, Texas, delivered 500 French baskets to G—— C—— E—— Co. for shipment to A—— D—— D—— in Savannah, Georgia. In the original bill-of-lading and on the waybill there was a notation that it was a c.o.d. shipment. G—— E—— delivered the shipment to H—— T—— Co. in Houston, who failed to place the c.o.d. notation on its waybill.

It delivered the shipment to the terminal carrier, F—— T—— Co., who delivered the shipment to the consignee, D——, without collection of c.o.d. charges in the amount of $665.00. When the shipper, O—— Co., learned that the c.o.d. was not collected, it demanded payment in the amount of the c.o.d. charges from the carriers. H—— T—— Co. discovered its failure to make the c.o.d. notation, and issued a corrected waybill and sent it to the terminal carrier. The consignee refused to pay.

The terminal carrier picked up and stored the shipment in its warehouse in Savannah, Georgia. Shipper was so notified on December 19th.

In subsequent litigation, the higher court held the two carriers liable to the shipper, O—— Co., for $665.00, the amount of the c.o.d. charges. Also, this court held that the initial carrier, G—— C—— E—— Co. could recover its loss from the connecting carrier, the H—— T—— Co. This higher court explained that in such a case the shipper may collect from the negligent carrier the full amount of the c.o.d. which may be greater than the actual value of the shipped merchandise.

What legal complications might arise from route extention proceedings?

Many and sundry. For illustration, in M—— T—— Co. v. C—— M—— F——, Inc., 97 N. W. (2d) 265, the testimony showed these facts: The M—— T—— Co. filed an application with the Public Service Commission for an extension of its regular route certificate of public convenience and necessity to serve two additional towns. The C—— M—— F——, Inc., and B—— T—— L——, Inc., hereinafter protestants, filed a formal protest objecting to the granting of the application of the M—— T—— Co.

On July 1, 1958, an examiner for the commission filed a report with the commission wherein he recommended that M——'s application be granted in its entirety.

On July 7, 1958, the protestants filed exceptions to the examiner's report and recommendation.

On July 28, 1958, oral argument, on the objections filed by the protestants to the examiner's report and recommendation, was heard before the commission.

On August 1, 1958, the commission entered its order sustaining the exceptions filed by the protestants to the examiner's report, overruled the examiner's report, and denied M——'s application in part.

On September 8, 1958, M—— filed a "motion for re-hearing and reconsideration" of the commission's order entered August 1, 1958.

On September 9, 1958, a motion for rehearing of the commission's action of August 1, 1958, was filed by the protestants.

UVL Calls for Industry Unity

At their 14th Annual Convention, more than 500 United Van Lines agents heard their president, William S. Kutschbach, voice a plea for close knit unity in the industry to meet the challenge of competitive forms of transportation. "The industry to which we belong," he said, "is currently engaged in the severest kind of competition. Competitive forms of transportation seek their own expansion at our expense—and we, as an industry, have to be constantly alert and progressive to meet their challenge."

Warehouse Directory

THIS DIRECTORY is the shippers' special key to the public warehouse industry. In the editorial listings which follow, you will find a warehouse-by-warehouse breakdown of services. Warehouse companies are listed alphabetically by state and city.

The editorial content of the front of this issue consists of three sections—General Merchandise, Cold Storage, and Household Goods.

This however does not mean that all warehouses fall clearly into only one of these groups. Since many combine merchandise and household goods operations, these types of services have been combined in the first directory section. Cold storage warehouses, being highly specialized, are presented in a separate breakdown.

In two other sections, DISTRIBUTION AGE takes you inside similar facilities in Canada. The sections of the 1961 Directory start on these pages:

U. S. Merchandise—114

Canadian Merchandise—411

U. S. Refrigerated—416

Canadian Refrigerated—427.

The listings are prepared by the Editorial Staff of DISTRIBUTION AGE as a service to its readers. They give the manufacturer buying warehouse services an inside view of individual companies as well as city-wide and state-wide studies of the industry.

Use of the directory will vary from company to company. Many manufacturers want distribution center services. They will look in each listing for such features as: "Unit hdlg," "MDSE pool cars," "Priv siding, 12-car cap.," "20-tk dock," "Hwy equip: 12 local 6 road." In this information they will see palletized loads moving in and out rapidly to give each of their dealers a full range of products.

For a manufacturer with seasonal sales, storage is the primary need. He will place strong emphasis on such features as: "Loans on stored goods," "Sprinklered," "Ins 24," and "SB." These tell how storage will affect his finances.

Buyers of refrigerated service will search the cold storage listings for warehouses with large deep freeze capacities. Other will have no use for this service. Instead they will be interested in total cooler space. This type of information, along with details on humidity control and special product storage sections, are reported in the Cold Storage Directory.

and in August our 30th anniversary...

Three decades of meeting the needs of warehouse users, including many of the nation's leading industries.

A period productive of lasting friendships and customer relations second to none — factors essential to effective results. We are appreciative indeed.

Overland's personnel, long experienced in distribution procedures are always prepared to assist your sales effort throughout the Los Angeles area in an efficient and energetic manner.

Services at package rates for storage of General Merchandise and that requiring Customs Bond or Refrigerated (41 - 43°) facilities... offices and warehouse areas for lease... housekeeping at its best with all space cleanly maintained, A. D. T. protected and ready — for you.

SAN FRANCISCO

VITAL CENTER OF PACIFIC COAST DISTRIBUTION

South End's California warehouse, or main building, at 625 Second Street, contains the general offices. Their Terminal warehouse (not shown here) is located at 660 Third St. All South End's properties are near all railroad depots and steamship docks.

King and Company, drayage division, operates a great fleet of trucks, to meet the requirements of South End's merchandise handling problems. Models range from light delivery trucks to ten-ton jobs.

American Warehouse, 699 Second Street, which contains offices for manufacturers' representatives, also provides an inside spur track, loading platform, driveway and garage. Yard space and paved parking lot is situated between these two buildings.

The traffic line is a continuation of the production line. Sales are only consummated when traffic people, such as yourself, deliver the product to your customer. Choosing a warehouse in another city, which will be the end of your traffic line, or your delivery problem, is not an easy one. You cannot know all the people in each warehouse; therefore, you must depend on the system's reputation which controls both the warehouse and its people.

Ryder Bonded Warehouse, a division of Ryder System, Inc., gives you the assurance that the end of your traffic line will be handled by the same type of people you would want in your own department: steady, loyal, customer-conscious people. Ryder System knows one of its main assets in the warehouse division is personnel. Let me prove their worth to you now!

North Pier Terminal SHIP AND BARGE-SIDE WAREHOUSES AT CHICAGO

North Pier Terminal

Seaport of Mid-America

Use our ship and barge-side warehouses. Locate your office with your warehouse. Or, we will handle your merchandise package storage.

OFFICE-WAREHOUSE FACILITIES

Use our main terminal for warehouse space and/or office space, and be only five minutes from Chicago's Loop. You can use our merchandise package storage service and pay by the package or hundredweight. You will be at the center of the Chicago Expressway System for fast commuting, speedy deliveries, and quick customer service. This facility is within five minutes trucking from all downtown ship dock terminals.

MARINE SHIPPING FACILITIES

Our ship and barge-side warehouses, either at Navy Pier or at the mouth of the Chicago River (see pictures at right), handle every kind of shipment.

Our THIRD marine facility is our ship and barge-side warehouse at Lake Calumet situated on the Calumet Expressway at the south edge of Chicago. At this warehouse you can transfer goods from ship to barge or rail for shipment to the west and south—package goods, bulk cargo or heavy machinery. Lake Calumet is connected to the Mississippi River by the Cal-Sag Channel and Illinois River. This permits barge loads to travel to New Orleans and other ocean ports. Ships leave regularly from Lake Calumet bound for Europe, South America, Africa . . . the world . . . VIA the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Seaway.

HVC'S Electronic Memory

Completely automatic! The fork lift operator deposits his palletized load on the inbound conveyor, presses the button for the proper floor in HVC's electronic memory and goes on about his business. HVC automatically loads the pallet onto the lift—and the "memory" deposits it at the proper floor only a short distance from where it is going to be stored—in a matter of seconds!

THE PEAK IN WAREHOUSING

Largest, completely modern, most efficiently equipped warehouse in Cincinnati area — over 9,000,000 cubic feet of fireproof space.

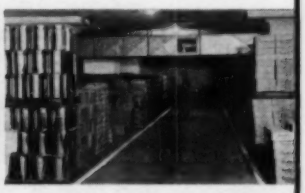

Large, modern offices have air-conditioning, fluorescent lighting, tiled floors.

Small offices are equipped and decorated to give limited staffs every convenience.

Clean, well-lighted, sanitary space provides storage for any quantity of stock.

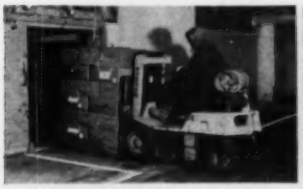

Holding rooms keep products at exactly right temperatures — from 30 below to zero.

Complete mechanization moves goods swiftly, without delay. Pallet exchange saves time.

Canopied docks and inside trackage for 11 freight cars give protection from weather.

Motorized lift trucks convey products into blast freezing tunnel for fast processing.

Inside tunnel, an extremely cold blast (low as 50 below) stops all deterioration.

Ample space, advanced facilities, complete range of services mean highest efficiency in distributing to vast Cincinnati market.

All types of storage — freezer, controlled cooler, heated, and general.

Ultra Quick Blast Freezing meets modern needs with blasts as low as 50 below zero.

Modern Holding Rooms keep foods at their peak in temperatures that go to 30 below.

MERCHANTS HAS BEEN WHERE COMMERCE IS FOR 75 YEARS

Illustration courtesy Philadelphia Electric Co.

A lot of water has flowed past our doors in those 75 years . . . and millions of tons of merchandise has flowed through them.

But it's tomorrow we're thinking about! The tomorrow you see here in an artist's sketch of Philadelphia's proposed multi-million-dollar Washington Square East Development near the new heliport and the planned Delaware River Expressway on the lip of the Delaware River.

Merchants is already there. Has been for 75 years. Serving satisfied customers with this and eight other Philadelphia warehouses (total—1½ million square feet of space). Strategic locations, handy to rail, water, highway arteries. Low insurance rates. IBM system keeps continual watch over inventories.

Merchants knows its business. Knows yours, too. In a nutshell, Merchants can put you into the Philadelphia picture . . . fast!

STRATEGIC WAREHOUSE LOCATIONS IN MILWAUKEE

How many competitor's products have taken shelf space away from your firm because of not having your product, when needed, spot stocked in public warehouses. Now the problem is not with your product, but rather with your products distribution. The best in merchandise is fine, but without strategic distribution, sales are not possible.

Hansen's three locations give you a flexibility that is best suited to the sellers' needs. Furthermore, our warehouses are exactly where they should be for real service to you, — in the highly concentrated market areas.

Contact Hansens for the complete story. Learn of our low insurance rates. Find out first hand why our business will not necessarily be a cost addition for you, but rather a cost reduction.

Port Uses Giant Crane

Land view of the Port of Los Angeles' crane installed for use with the new container terminal. Here it loads containers onto Matson's Hawaiian Citizen, recently converted all-container ship. Matson operates its sealift service on a triangular route with Alameda in San Francisco Bay, Los Angeles, and Honolulu as the ports of call. Dockside cranes are at each port. The ship carries up to 72 refrigerated containers on a regular basis.

Within the Law . . .

On September 24, 1958, the protestants made request in writing that their motion for rehearing filed under date of September 9, 1958, be withdrawn. This request was granted by the commission.

On September 22, 1958, hearing was held on M——'s motion for rehearing and reconsideration before the commission.

On November 11, 1958, the commission issued its order in which it sustained M——'s motion for reconsideration; vacated and set aside its prior order dated August 1, 1958; approved the examiner's report; and granted M——'s application in its entirety.

In later suit, the higher court explained that to simplify legal procedure involving granting a certificate of public convenience and necessity, the only questions to be determined are whether or not the Public Service Commission acted within the scope of its authority, and whether or not the order is reasonable and not arbitrary.

WAREHOUSING

Is the president of a warehouse corporation ever held liable for damages to goods stored?

Yes. For illustration, in A—— v. C—— V—— & S—— Co., 340 Pac. (2d) 566, the testimony showed that a woman named A—— entered into a written contract with the C—— V—— & S—— Co. for the storage of her household goods. These goods consisted of furniture, some of which was antique, carpeting, draperies, chinaware, silver, clothing, and other personal effects, all of which she testified would cost $18,000.00 to replace. A—— sued both the warehouse corporation and its president, named D——, for damages equal to the value of her destroyed household goods. A—— contended that D—— is personally liable because his negligence in different respects caused the loss.

During the trial the evidence disclosed without contradiction that the warehouse building was not fireproof. Further testimony proved that the warehouse building had no partitions in the attic separating each 2500 sq ft of space, as required by a city ordinance; the warehouse building had glass block partitions which had a maximum fire resistance of only 15 minutes, whereas the city ordinance required that such partitions must be made of material with a one-hour fire resistance; the incinerator was homemade and did not conform with standard requirements adopted by the Board of Fire underwriters.

At this time a warehouse employe was burning trash and papers in the incinerator and the fire started among some old paper and boxes near the warehouse building. The fire spread into the warehouse building.

Notwithstanding this evidence, the jury held both the warehouse company and D—— not liable to A—— for destruction of her goods.

It is interesting to observe that the higher court reversed this verdict, and said:

"To summarize, first defendant (C—— V—— & S—— Co.) accepted plaintiff's (A——'s) household goods for storage in a building which, according to the undisputed evidence, did not measure up even to fire resistance structure according to the standard requirements adopted by the Board of Fire Underwriters. Secondly, the incinerator provided for disposing of trash, paper, etc., was defective in practically every major requirement of standard construction. Thirdly, the cleaning-up process by burning trash, paper, etc., on a day when the wind was blowing 20 miles per hour at a time when the warehouse yard had quite an accumulation of boxes, both wooden and pasteboard. We therefore hold that the trial court committed error in refusing to instruct the jury that the C—— V—— & S—— Co., Inc., a corporation, was negligent as a matter of law."

This higher court indicated that D—— may be held personally liable and individually liable to A—— for the value of her destroyed goods. In this respect, the court said:

"We are of the view that the question of the negligence of D—— should have been submitted to the jury for its determination. We believe his failure to control, manage and provide a building for the storage business with a higher fire resistance than he furnished, and providing an incinerator that was defective in every major detail amounted to a failure to exercise that care which a reasonably careful owner of similar goods would exercise. . . . These facts required, according to our view, that the question of D——'s negligence should also have been submitted to the jury for their determination as to whether he was individually liable in damages for whatever loss plaintiff (A——) sustained."

Total tonnage moved was three million pounds

Recent Developments In Reefer Equipment

Meat Unloader for Store Delivery

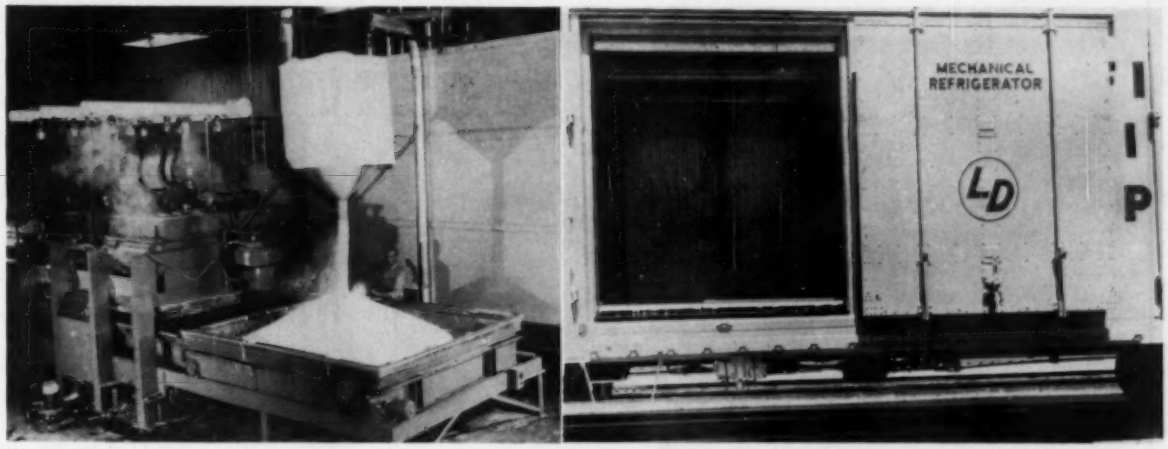

A refrigerated van introduced recently by Dorsey Trailers, Inc., combines many features to increase handling speed and temperature control. Meat and ice cream can be transported along with staple groceries and produce through use of a movable partition (above). The partition moves in the same tracks as the rolling meat rails. It locks overhead when not in use. This one-man unloader (left) lowers rails filled with meat within easy reach of the ground. Meat never touches the floor. The track and rail system can be engineered to unload other hard-to-handle types of products

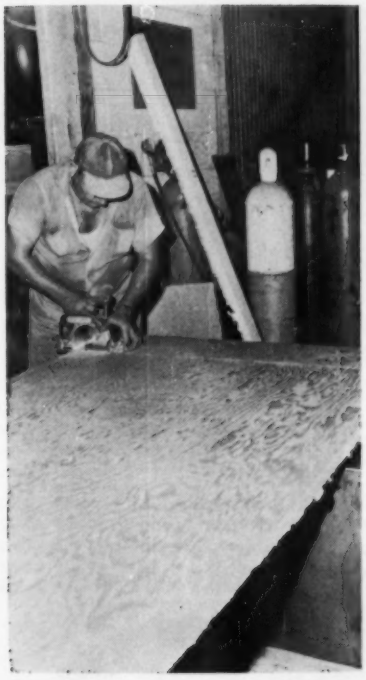

No manual lifting is required to load meat into this refrigerated van. The meat rolls on the trolleys (far left) directly from the packing house tram-rail. After it is rolled onto a rail at the back of the trailer, the rail is pushed forward on tracks (near left) built into the sidewalls of the two-rail system. In one test, two men loaded a trailer with dressed hogs in 18 minutes. This operation normally would have taken ten men about 40 minutes Panels, made of rigid foamed urethane with a waterproofed plywood face and aluminum foil back, can be cut with an ordinary saw. Panels interlock for airtight construction. Their shiplap joints provide 6 in. of sealing surface between panels

Wider Refrigerator Car Door

Pacific Fruit Express, through use of lightweight insulation, has aided mechanical loading. The doors of PFE's 1025 new reefers will be 8 ft 6 in. wide. They are molded in a special machine in which a Koppers expanded polystyrene plastic is foamed in place within a plastic shell. Older reefer doors were not over 6-ft wide

New Trailer

A simplified method of insulating refrigerated trailers and railroad cars has been developed by the Urefoam Corp. Key to the method is a lightweight panel which can be handled by one man (right). Sidewall panels support roof panels without bolts. Shown below is a 35-ft trailer with the new insulation. A standard mechanical refrigeration unit reduced temperature to –30 deg F in two hours with an outside temperature of 89 deg. Panels cut insulation space by more than half and reduce weight

Works near people with no distracting noise or fumes

AUTOMATIC® DOCKER

Here's the industrial truck that's ideal for materials handling near production line assemblers, machine tool operators and other indoor workers. The battery-powered electric Docker works silently and smoothly without engine noise or objectionable fumes that disturb workers and cause operator fatigue. Because of its stand-up end control design it can work easily in any type of congested areas where the operator is required to be constantly on and off the truck.

The Docker is just one of over 200 AUTOMATIC models which offer the advantages of battery powered electric truck operation. Get the full story about the Docker in the brochure "Docker Facts and Factors" or write for the helpful Truck Selector Guide which describes the complete AUTOMATIC line. Write today.

Tight quarters on docks and inside trucks are no problem for the Docker with its short overall length and zero inside turning radius. Capacities 1500 to 4000 lbs.
